

COMMITTEE FOR THE INSTITUTIONAL RESPONSE TO THE COMMISSION'S RECOMMENDATIONS (CIRCoRe)

Terms of Reference

1. PURPOSE OF THE TERMS OF REFERENCE

This Terms of Reference (ToR) sets out a guideline for the role and functioning of the Committee for the Institutional Response to the Commission's Recommendations (CIRCoRe) responsible for Stellenbosch University's processing and response to the Khampepe Commission Report.

The CIRCoRe's remit is to lead, implement, oversee and monitor Stellenbosch University's response to the Khampepe Commission Report's recommendations. CIRCoRe is responsible for the overall goals and objectives, direction-setting, guidance, and the integrated coherence and monitoring of the process. CIRCoRE leads, coordinates and manages the institutional response process for the two-year duration of the committee's work.

A CIRCoRe Coordinating Office keeps the various dimensions of the process together, while the CIRCoRe governance committee, headed by the Rector, with the Deputy-Vice Chancellor for Social Impact, Transformation and Personnel as secundus, serve as the governance instrument that oversees the CIRCoRE Khampepe Institutional Response process. The CIRCoRe process will report back to CIRCoRe committee governance meetings once per term (i.e., at least four times per year).

The CIRCoRE processes will develop urgent short-term proposals for immediate implementation by its five workstreams. These workstreams (abbreviated) are:

1. Student life/communities
2. Curriculum
3. Institutional culture
4. Race, human categorisation and science
5. Strategic organisational alignment

The workstreams will also generate medium and longer-term implementational recommendations. The recommendations of the response process will be fed directly to the Rectorate for consideration and implementation.

2. CIRCoRe's SUPPORT, INTEGRATION AND AUGMENTATION FUNCTION

The following dimensions guide, support, augment and integrate CIRCoRe work to achieve its overall objectives:

- Facilitate coherence, integration and linkages across all CIRCoRe's operations and workstreams;
- Coordinate and record all dialogue, consultation and buy-in processes with the campus community and external stakeholders and partners;
- Gather the available information and data, on and off campus, necessary for CIRCoRe and workstream processes;

- Launch targeted research projects (with the requisite institutional and ethics permissions) to support CIRCoRe and workstreams deliberations, decision-making and proposal-generation processes;
- Coordinate the proposed Transformation Charter development processes;
- Facilitate the development of short, medium and long-term recommendations to the Rectorate via advisory interaction with the workstream processes. Such advice will involve identifying gaps, omissions and blockages in workstream deliberations and ensuring joined-up coherence among proposals;
- Evaluate and monitor all CIRCoRe processes to identify progress, achievements, blockages, and shortcomings, which will guide course correction and adaptation towards achievement goals;
- Develop and coordinate communications to disseminate, popularise and gain buy-in for CIRCoRe-generated ideas, perspectives and proposals to the campus community, external stakeholders and partners and the outside world. CIRCoRe's communications are based on maximising multilingualism, translanguaging strategies and multimedia platforms to reach a broad audience; and
- Initiate and coordinate scholarly conversation via inviting scholarly opinion and comment about CIRCoRe's foci and organising webinars, symposia, workshops and conferences to promote debate. In this regard, a critical dimension is inviting relevant academics and other experts to enrich and inform CIRCoRe's work.

3. THE CIRCoRe OFFICE'S TASKS AND FUNCTIONS

Conceptualise and lead the CIRCoRe process:

- Lead and coordinate all CIRCoRe process;
- Responsible for coordinating and developing CIRCoRe processes and substantive directions; and
- Accountable for the processes and outcomes of the CIRCoRe processes.

Oversee office, budget, and stakeholder reporting:

- Set up and coordinate office infrastructure;

WORKSTREAM 1: STUDENT LIFE/COMMUNITIES

Terms of Reference

Purpose of the Terms of Reference

This Terms of Reference (ToR) sets out a guideline for the "Student life/communities" (SLC) workstream of their role and purpose within the broader "Committee for the Institutional Response to Commission's Recommendations" (CIRCoRe) responsible for the processing of the Khampepe Report's analysis, findings and recommendations.

This workstream (SLC) will focus on the question of diverse student experiences and particularly marginalised student experiences at SU, and how to systematically ensure student flourishing for all students. The Khampepe Report highlighted the role of race in student experience. This cannot be separated from intersectional experiences of gender, class, disability, and other intersections with race. This workstream will seek to identify barriers and opportunities, to enhance a flourishing student experience for all.

1. Role/purpose of the workstream

The University should become a key site for developing an evaluation/critique of student experiences of race and their intersectionalities (e.g., gender), with the aim of ensuring opportunities/platforms for all students to flourish.

- The workstream will provide insight into how student experiences are marred by racism and its intersectionalities.
- It will help SU re-imagine how it may conceptualise and operationalise its work with students in a democratic society in transition to allow students to leave SU as citizens who value and implement an ethos of democracy.
- The workstream will facilitate scholarly insight and awareness of challenges and opportunities that students face in the University, including in its research, teaching, and community engagement.
- This workstream will feed into the relevant university student structures to align all its engagements into policy, both at university and national levels.

2. Decision-making

The workstream will work on the principles of democratic voting processes, consensus in recommending to the CIRCoRe Coordinator and committee.

WORKSTREAM 2: COMPULSORY CURRICULUM OFFERING EMBEDDED IN PROCESSES OF CURRICULUM, TEACHING AND LEARNING RENEWAL

Terms of Reference

1. Purpose of the Terms of Reference

This Terms of Reference (ToR) sets out a guideline for the CO workstream regarding their role and purpose within the broader Committee for the Institutional Response to the Commission's Recommendations (CIRCoRe) that is responsible for the processing of the Khampepe Report's Analysis, Findings, Recommendations.

The CO workstream has deliberated on its brief and agreed to change it. This workstream will focus on the issue of how the undergraduate curriculum and co-curriculum environment help students to engage critically with received ideas about individuals, society and knowledge in order for them to actively contribute to the development of a democratic institutional culture and a just society as graduates. The Khampepe Report highlighted the need to purposefully intervene in the formal space of teaching and learning to ensure that no form of bigotry is practised or tolerated at the university and for SU graduates to reflect this in their personal lives.

This workstream will seek to interrogate the role of SU's curriculum and co-curriculum environment in providing a transformative experience to undergraduate students.¹

2. Role/purpose of the workstream

We believe the SU should be a site for academic renewal, developing a critique of the taught curriculum as well as the co-curricular space and the ways in which the taught and hidden curriculum might be reproducing or leaving unchallenged racism, gender stereotypes, and knowledge in the service of power. In view of this, the workstream sees its purposes as:

- To provide insight into existing curricular/co-curricular/educational experiences focused on developing critical engagement with the self and society.
- To access and consider curriculum examples viz the "transformative student experience" from other local, national and international educational contexts.
- To seek consensus as to the best approaches to respond to the Khampepe Report recommendation regarding a compulsory core curriculum offering.
- To support SU in unpacking the different dimensions of the "transformative student experience" and how this can contribute to the process of academic renewal.
- To facilitate scholarly insight and awareness on the role of curriculum in the development of citizenship, democracy and social justice.
- To consider the different types of academic staff training that might be necessary to provide lecturers with the resources to develop and teach/facilitate such curricula.

¹ In this context we understand curriculum in its broadest sense, incorporating not only programme content but also teaching, learning and assessment approaches, the systemic environment, and the use of language and discourse to enable epistemic access and the holistic development of our students. Curricular experiences encompass activities both inside and outside of the classroom, and are embodied by cognitive (knowledge), ontological (being/self) and praxis (doing/action) development of our students in their transformative journey through higher education. [Luckett & Shay, 2020; Luckett, 2016; Barnett, 2001].

Curriculum embraces the three domains of knowledge, action and self. The challenge in developing curricula is not just to ensure that these three domains are adequately represented in the curriculum, but that the moments of these three domains are, in due measure, integrated. See Ronald Barnett (2000) Supercomplexity and the Curriculum, Studies in Higher Education, 25:3, 255-265, DOI: 10.1080/713696156

- To take its deliberations to the faculties, centres, and divisions in order to engage with academics, support staff, and students.
- To develop intellectual insight and facilitate public debate at SU into the philosophical, theoretical and implementational bases of curricula to facilitate the “transformative student experience”.

3. Decision-making

The workstream will work on the principles of democratic voting processes, consensus in recommending to the primary CIRCoRe Coordinator and committee.

4. Role of the head of the workstream

- To chair the CO workstream meetings.
- To ensure that the minutes of the workstream and relevant documents are shared with the workstream members.
- To liaise with the coordinator of the CIRCoRe process.
- To liaise with the heads of the other workstreams.
- To liaise with researchers aiding the process.
- To delegate responsibilities and or tasks to the Secretary and the members of the workstream.
- To report on the work of the workstream to relevant stakeholders.

5. Role of the secretary of the CO workstream

- To create a platform where the relevant documents will be shared.

WORKSTREAM 3: INSTITUTIONAL CULTURE

Terms of Reference

Introduction

These terms of reference of the Workstream on Institutional Culture emerge from the two-year committee-led process to develop and implement Stellenbosch University's (SU's) institutional response to the report of The Commission of Inquiry into Allegations of Racism at Stellenbosch University led by Justice Sisi Khampepe. Following the final Khampepe Report, as is commonly known, which was released on 25 October 2022, Stellenbosch University (SU), established the Committee for the Institutional Response to the Commission's Recommendations (CIRCoRe) to oversee the process.

The institutional response process is coordinated from the University's centre by the Vice-Chancellor and Rectorate, guided by SU's Mission and Vision 2040 document and its overall transformation objectives. The CIRCoRe is headed and chaired by the Rector and, in his absence, the Deputy Vice-Chancellor: Social Impact, Transformation and Personnel. The CIRCoRe's remit is to lead, implement, oversee and monitor Stellenbosch University's response to the Khampepe Commission Report's recommendations. The CIRCoRe is responsible for the overall goals and objectives, direction-setting, guidance, and the integrated coherence and monitoring of the process. The CIRCoRe will regularly report to the Rectorate, Senate, the Institutional Forum, Council and other relevant structures. It will make recommendations to the Rectorate and other appropriate decision-making and implementation structures and committees. Decisions would be channelled to permanent structures such as the Transformation Office, Equality Unit. The CIRCoRe has set up five workstreams, with a coordinator leading each workstream. Each workstream is tasked with processing the Khampepe Report's findings and recommendations for its specific remit and focus.

Scope

The principal focus of the work of the IC workstream is to study, deliberate on and recommend how to align the University's institutional culture with a democratic human rights ethos.

The broader CIRCoRe terms of reference notes that race is part of the institutional life of SU, impacting its 'modes of being', traditions, and everyday operations. SU functioned as a race-based system at personal, cultural, and structural levels. It reproduced its institutional culture amid the ordering of relationships and processes inside the University and the invention and dissemination of traditions and practical 'ways of doing' in its sports and recreational environments, classrooms, and residences. As such, the IC workstream will endeavour to offer the institution ways of understanding the racialised and racist institutional culture of SU and how to shift and change this culture over time. Racism, the idea of race, and practices of racialisation intersect with other categories of discrimination, exclusion, and inclusion. Class, ethnicity, geography, gender, language, sexualities, disability, accent, and nationality are some of the categories to which the work of the IC workstream will need to attend.

Key questions

The following are the four questions around which the work of the stream revolves.

1. What is the institutional culture, especially as it relates to intersectional inclusions and exclusions, at SU, and how is it experienced?
2. How and under what conditions is institutional culture produced, reproduced, and resisted at SU?
3. What might a collective, institutional culture path or paths look like? In other words, what are the leverage points for systemic change?
4. What indicators would need to be put in place to monitor institutional culture and social change?

Key deliverables

1. The workstream will study, deliberate upon, develop and recommend the adoption of a Transformation Charter for the University. The workstream may, following its processes, recommend the adoption of a different mechanism to effect institutional culture transformation.
2. The workstream is tasked with thinking about, studying and recommending a compulsory training of staff to build intersectional transformation competencies.
3. The workstream will consider offering concrete short, medium, and long-term implementation strategies and practices to align the University's environments with a culture of human rights, inclusion, and non-discrimination.

Resources, roles and responsibilities

A member of the workstream will take responsibility of each of the key deliverables. The responsible member will report on the progress, milestones, risks and issues at different points of the life of the workstream.

WORKSTREAM 4: RACE, HUMAN CATEGORISATION AND SCIENCE

Terms of Reference

Purpose of the Terms of Reference

This Terms of Reference (ToR) sets out a guideline for the "Race, Human Categorisation and Science" (RHCS) of their role and purpose within the broader "Committee in Response to Commission Recommendations" (CIRCoRe) responsible for the processing of the Khampepe Report's Analysis, Findings, Recommendations.

This workstream (RHCS) will focus on the question of race and human categorisation at SU. The Khampepe Report highlighted the role of race in the University's historical development. This workstream will seek to problematise SU's role in promoting race science and using race as a primary ordering category of scholarly practices.

Role/purpose of the workstream

We believe the University should be committed to anti-racism and become a key site for developing a critique of the use of certain views of race and other human categories in science, research, and related institutional practices and processes.

- The workstream will provide insight into how race seeped into the University's teaching and learning, research, and social impact operations.
- It will help SU re-imagine how it continues to re-orientate and re-structure its work within a democratic society in transition. Consideration would be given to instituting campus-wide mechanisms dedicated to transforming research and science, which would develop the scholarship and scholarly infrastructure to promote, coordinate and deepen processes related to a transformed understanding of science and research.
- The workstream will facilitate scholarly insight and awareness of the role of human categorisation in the scientific processes of the University, including its research, teaching, and societal work. Such a task will add value to debates and policies about the use of human categories in science and research in the higher education sector more generally.
- Training staff and students on science, race and human categorisation will be given consideration.
- This workstream will feed into the relevant university research committees, processes, and structures to align all its science and knowledge activity to the requirements of the country's Constitution.

Decision-making

The workstream will work on the principles of democratic voting processes, consensus in recommending to the CIRCoRe Coordinator and committee.

Role of the head of the RHCS workstream

- To chair the RHCS workstream meetings.
- To ensure that the minutes of the workstream and relevant documents are shared with the workstream members.
- To liaise with the coordinator of the CIRCoRe process.
- To liaise with the heads of the other workstreams.

WORKSTREAM 5: SIMPLIFYING AND ALIGNING UNIVERSITY STRUCTURES, POLICIES AND REGULATIONS WITH TRANSFORMATION

Terms of Reference

Purpose of the Terms of Reference

The Terms of Reference (TOR) sets out a guideline for workstream's 5's areas of work within the broader Committee for the Institutional Response to the Commission's Recommendations (CIRCoRe) responsible for processing the analysis, findings and recommendations of the Khampepe Report.

It is noted that this TOR provide for a "living document" to be updated from time to time. Furthermore, the activities in the Plan of Action (POA) for this workstream will mirror the current and updated focus areas and also provide a tool for monitoring and evaluating the work planned and completed.

Focus of work

Three over-arching areas of work have been identified as below:

1. To critically discuss SU's current structures – beginning with those related to transformation and then extending the discussion to others with the following questions in mind:
 - What the roles/functions of these structures (considering their origins and history)?
 - How do these relate to each other – process flow, overlaps and distinctions?
 - How might these structures be simplified for greater effectiveness and efficiency?
2. To review current over-arching SU policies and regulations related to transformation and the ways in which these influence sub-policies with the following questions in mind:
 - Where has race "seeped in" to these policies and regulations and how does this affect student experience?
 - What recommendations might be made for the alignment of these policies and regulations with SU's vision of a university that ensures that all students are provided with a quality learning experience?
3. To incorporate feedback from the other four workstreams in the work outlined above.

Decision-making

The workstream will work on the principles of democratic voting processes, consensus in recommending to the CIRCoRe coordinator and committee.
