

FACULTY OF THEOLOGY

The faculty of Theology does not utilise practicals which require lab work at undergraduate level, as part of our teaching and learning strategies. We do make much use of service learning activities through partnership with churches, schools and varying partners within the NPO sector. None of these opportunities are open under level 3 (despite churches and schools partially being able to do so) which results in modules adapting to creative modes in which students could learn (eg. Case studies, online contacts through MS Teams, etc.). Two modules not included on the spreadsheet for semester two are; PT344 and PT243 in which both have a practical component (they have to visit their church based project or an NGO for a total of 8 hours over the semester), but the lecturer will re-write that part of the module. In Systematic Theology, courses structured around working in the Historical Archives, lecturers managed to get the necessary materials scanned and uploaded to SUN Learn just before the lockdown but students may require access to these archives at a later stage. For this reason, no students at undergraduate level are expected to return to campus for the remainder of the 2020 academic year (refer to excel spreadsheet).
