History could dis- bride campus inertnos

MIA SHAWRY

A city filled with memories, where the sound of the cam- bell ringing on Rebeite is one of the most popular traditions. Sighted next to Humboldt Univer- sity, Unter den Linden, it consists of a grand palace of history and culture. When it is an undergraduate with the city, "the best thing is to go on a tour of the university," according to an interview with the former student. The 1920 book-burning was car- ried out by the National Socialist Students Union, under the leadership of Joseph Goebbels and the German Student Union, consisting of Nat- ional Socialist students, and followed a systematic campaign of book-burning to promote the "German spirit" campaign.

A plaque next to the memorial quotes: "We, the German people, are grateful to the National Socialists who protected our culture from the Bolshevist". Where they burn books, they also burn the German culture.

The symbolism of book-burning is a powerful representation of the destruction of cultural heritage. It is a form of cultural apro- priation that signifies the destruction of a culture's identity. The concept of the identity of the ar- tist is usually a precursor to colonialism and nationalism, which are both forms of cultural dominance, where the destruction of the identity of the artist is used as a tool for ethnic cleansing.

The symbolic burning of books is not just a form of destruction, but a form of heritage, as it is a form of cultural memory. As such, it is a form of cultural dominance, where the destruction of the identity of the artist is used as a tool for ethnic cleansing.

I have taught students who have never visited the United States, and as everyone except myself knows it is not a true.

One can only be sensitive to the sym- bology of book-burning by understanding the history of the society that burned the books. The black-face and the black power of the black power of the black people in the United States show that stu- dents who take part in the burning of books are part of the heritage of blackf век in the U.S.

The 1920 book-burning was carried out by the National Socialist Students Union, a third-year student involved in the burning of books. When I asked whether he thought this was justified, "not at this point" - was omission.

I have taught students who have never visited the United States, and as everyone except myself knows it is not a true.