1.4 Registered postgraduate students

- The Postgraduate Programmes chapter contains information about:
 - the Faculty's postgraduate study programmes; and
 - the subjects and modules that must be taken per academic year for the different study programmes, with choices where applicable.

General Information

1. History and function of the Faculty of Theology

The Faculty of Theology at Stellenbosch University is an ecumenical faculty which provides academic training in Christian theology according to different confessional convictions and church traditions. The Faculty (established in 1963) developed out of the Theological Seminary of the Dutch Reformed Church (DRC), which was founded in 1859. It is an open faculty which also trains ministers and youth workers, per agreement, for the following denominations:

- Dutch Reformed Church (DRC)
- Uniting Reformed Church (URC) in Southern Africa
- Uniting Presbyterian Church in Southern Africa (UPCSA)
- Anglican Church of Southern Africa (ACSA)
- Volkskerk
- United Evangelical Lutheran Church in Southern Africa

The Faculty of Theology is one of the smallest faculties at the University. It is, however, a hospitable, energetic and creative faculty in which scientific theology is practised with integrity.

The academic programmes on offer have Christian Reformed theology as point of departure. It offers undergraduate students a wide range of options with regards to teaching and research. The Faculty's undergraduate and postgraduate programmes make provision for a broad spectrum of students from various communities, churches and countries.

4. Language at the University

Stellenbosch University (SU) is committed to engagement with knowledge in a diverse society and through the Language Policy aims to increase equitable access to SU for all students and staff. Multilingualism is promoted as an important differentiating characteristic of SU. Afrikaans, English and isiXhosa are used in academic, administrative, professional and social contexts. Pedagogically sound teaching and learning are facilitated by means of Afrikaans and English.

More information concerning language at SU is available on the website www.sun.ac.za/language.

5. Qualifications offered in the Faculty of Theology

The programmes offered equip students for the ministry of various denominations. The denominations that have a training agreement with the University are members of a Church Liaison Council. The Faculty consults with this Liaison Council when determining the nature and content of the programmes.

You can obtain the following qualifications, with the minimum years of study indicated, in the Faculty of Theology:

Qualification	Abbreviation of Qualification	Minimum years of study
Bachelor of Theology <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • General (Ancient languages optional) • Specialisation in Youth Work *Take note: Students graduate with a BTh with the option to specialise in Youth Work. Doctor of Philosophy	PhD	2 years

6. Undergraduate enrolment management

Meeting the minimum admission requirements of a specific programme does not guarantee that you will be admitted to that programme. A limited number of places are available, and enrolments are strategically managed.

Details about the selection procedures and admission requirements for undergraduate programmes are available at www.maties.com.

The Faculty's admission requirements are available at <http://www.sun.ac.za/english/faculty/theology/Pages/Undergraduate-programmes.aspx>.

7. Extended degree programmes

- If you have obtained an average final mark of below 60%, but at least 55% in the National Senior Certificate, you could possibly be admitted to an extended degree programme, but only after an interview with the Dean or his or her representative.

- The extended degree programme is an academic development programme. The three-year BTh programme is presented over four years as an extended degree programme. The four-year BDiv programme is presented over five years as an extended degree programme. In each of these two extended degree programmes, the first-year modules are presented over two years. Thereafter, the modules per year are followed as for the standard BTh and BDiv programmes. If you achieve an average of 65% for all of your modules in the first year of the extended degree programme, you can register the next year, on the recommendation of the Dean, for the second year consisting of first-year and second-year modules.
- The Faculty of Theology may also use the results of the early assessment tests, taken by all first-year students, to identify first-year students already studying in the Faculty for switching over to the extended degree programmes. The Learning and Teaching Committee of the Faculty of Theology will make a recommendation in this regard.

8. Screening for the ministry

- If you are a prospective minister of:
 - the Dutch Reformed Church (DRC); or
 - the Uniting Reformed Church (URC) in Southern Africa; or
 - the Uniting Presbyterian Church in Southern Africa (UPCSA); or
 - the Anglican Church of Southern Africa
 who receives your training at this University, you must report to your denomination's Church Secretary at the beginning of your studies in order to undergo screening for the ministry.
- If you have interrupted your studies and now wish to continue with a view to entering the ministry, you must first discuss resumption of your selected programme with your denomination's Church Secretary before you apply for re-admission to this University.

9. Acknowledgement of credit(s) for advanced standing placement

- Points of departure in decision making:
 - only credits obtained from accredited South African Higher Education Institutions, or from foreign Higher Education Institutions that are regarded to be in compliance with South African accreditation requirements and standards, will be considered;
 - only credits obtained at the applicable NQF level will be considered;
 - the nature and scope of modules or qualifications offered will determine whether credits will be acknowledged;
 - matriculation exemption is a prerequisite for advanced placement in the BTh or BDiv programmes; and
 - credits obtained elsewhere or earlier will not count as having been obtained for both admission and advanced placement purposes.
- No less than half of the SU qualification's credits and no less than half of the final-year credits must have been obtained at SU in order to obtain a SU qualification (in accordance with statutory provisions and SU regulations), therefore:
 - if you apply for advanced placement in the (three-year) BTh programme, you may at most join BTh II; OR
 - if you apply for advanced placement in the (four-year) BDiv programme, and only if ancient languages are at least at a level equivalent to SU's Greek I and Hebrew I, you may at most join BDiv III.
- If you have not passed ancient languages at first-year level when you are admitted with advanced placement in the (four-year) BDiv programme, you may at most join the second year of the curriculum, and:
 - you must successfully complete both Greek I and Hebrew I during the second year of the BDiv programme before you may register for the third-year modules in Old Testament and New Testament of the BDiv programme;
 - before you have completed the required ancient language modules, however, you may register for other third-year modules, provided that you meet the prerequisites of such modules;
 - the Dean has to grant permission (in consultation with the Programme Committee chair) to you as BDiv student, to take (only) during your second year the tutorials of the Old Testament II and New Testament II modules for BTh students, and to take part in the corresponding assessments.

10. Simultaneous registration for more than one programme

If you are registered for a programme in the Faculty of Theology and want to follow an honours, master's or doctoral programme simultaneously in another faculty of Stellenbosch University, you may apply in writing to Senate for permission to do so.

11. Special students: Extraordinary categories of students at the Faculty of Theology

Extraordinary students in the Faculty of Theology register as special students.

A special student is a student who:

- does not wish to follow the specific programme for degree or diploma purposes; or
- does not meet the requirements for admission to the programme.

You must thus register for at least one module and pass at least one module to continue your studies as special student. See also “Admission as Special Student” in Part 1 (General) of the University Calendar.

12. Specific regulations of the Faculty

Besides the general examination and promotion regulations, as explained under General Regulations in Part 1 (General) of the Calendar, you must familiarise yourself with the specific regulations applicable to each programme in the Faculty of Theology.

You must also take note of the prerequisite pass (PP), prerequisite (P) and corequisite (C) requirements that apply to each module. Definitions of these prerequisites, as well as particulars on the requirements per module are in the chapter Subjects, Modules and Module Content under the module content descriptions.

13. Continuation and completion of modules and programmes

- If you meet the prerequisite, corequisite and pass prerequisite requirements applicable to a specific module, you may, subject to the class and examination timetables, continue with the subsequent year’s module of the subject you have passed.
- You may apply to the Faculty administrator (who may consult with the Faculty Manager and Programme Committee chair) for a concession to take a maximum of 32 credits (maximally 16 credits per semester) from a previous year of study of a subject, provided that the concession:
 - does not cause any class, test, or examination timetable clashes, and
 - does not apply to more than 16 credits in the same subject.
- Should there be class, test, or examination timetable clashes, or if more than 16 credits are involved, you must take the failed module (and not the subsequent year’s module).
- This provision corresponds with the provision that a student may, at any time, register for a maximum of only 32 credits per year more than the prescribed maximum number of credits for the year of study concerned.

14. Rules and regulations for the Dean’s Concession Examinations

A final-year student who, when all the examinations have been taken and all final marks are available, has not more than two modules with a maximum credit value of 24 credits in arrears for the degree, may be admitted to a Dean’s Concession Examination (DCE) as a concession by the Dean, in consultation with the academic department(s) concerned, subject to the following provisions:

- It is the responsibility of the students to identify themselves as DCE candidates and to report to the Faculty administrator to obtain the necessary permission and make the necessary arrangements. The Faculty administrator must verify whether the student qualifies for a DCE and inform the relevant department(s) and Dean accordingly.
- DCEs shall be granted only by the Dean in consultation with the academic department(s) concerned. Under no circumstances may any department grant a DCE without the Dean’s approval. No lecturer may give an undertaking to a student in this matter.
- DCEs are conducted on a date and at a time determined by the Dean, in consultation with the academic department(s) concerned. DCEs will take place no later than 15 February.
- DCEs are not granted to modules subject to flexible assessment.
- Students who have been granted a DCE must ascertain what fees need to be paid and when and where the DCE in question is to be written. Students must make such payments and present themselves at such time and place.

15. Bursaries

If you want to apply for bursaries, consult Part 2 (Bursary and Loans) of the Calendar for information about the bursaries available. You must contact Bursaries and Loans directly. The Faculty does not deal with bursary applications. For more information on bursaries and loans, visit: <http://www.maties.com/bursaries-loans-and-fees.html>.

16. Student representation

You are automatically a member of the Theological Student Society if you are registered as a student in the Faculty of Theology. This society is managed by the Theological Student Committee (TSC). The committee comprises an elected executive committee of nine members assisted by elected class representatives from each academic year. The TSC is affiliated with the Student Representative Council of Stellenbosch University and also has two seats on the Academic Affairs Council. Members of the TSC have seats on the Faculty Board and faculty committees, namely the Programme Committee, Operations Committee, Coram Deo and Community Interaction Committee, as well as on committees of the different teaching and learning task groups (TGLOs). The TSC manages its own finances and handles academic complaints of all students in the Faculty of Theology in collaboration with the Dean’s Office. The TSC is non-denominational, represents all student interests in the Faculty and coordinates student projects.

Undergraduate Programmes

1. Admission requirements

1.1 School-leaving qualifications

If you have matriculated in 2007 or earlier, you need the following for admission to the University:

- a Senior Certificate with full matriculation endorsement, or an exemption certificate of the Matriculation Board; or
- a conditional certificate of exemption from the matriculation examination issued by the Matriculation Board to candidates from foreign countries; or
- a conditional certificate of exemption from the matriculation examination issued on the grounds of age (to people 23 years and older).

If you have obtained the National Senior Certificate (NSC) in 2008 or later, you need the following for admission to the University:

- a National Senior Certificate as certified by Umalusi with admission to bachelor's degree studies*.

*Admission to bachelor's degree studies requires that you obtain a mark of at least 4 (50–59%) in each of four designated university admission subjects.

1.2 Minimum admission requirements for degree programmes in the Faculty of Theology

For admission to the degree programmes in the Faculty, you must meet the following minimum admission requirements:

1.2.1 National Senior Certificate (NSC)

- An average final mark of at least 60%, excluding Life Orientation
- A weighted average for the National Senior Certificate (approved subjects) of 60% or higher, if you do not have Theology as first choice; OR if you apply for Theology during the registration period.

1.3 Additional requirements for all applicants

As prospective undergraduate student you must take the National Benchmarking Tests (NBT). For more information on this, visit the NBT website at www.nbt.ac.za or the University's website at www.maties.com.

The University may use the results of the National Benchmarking Tests for:

- decision-making about the placement of students in extended degree programmes;
- selection; and
- curriculum development.

1.4 Admission requirements for the extended degree programmes

- If you have obtained a final mark below 60%, but at least 55% in the National Senior Certificate, you could possibly be admitted to an extended degree programme, but only after an interview with the Dean or his or her representative.
- If you have a weighted National Senior Certificate average (approved subjects) of below 55%, you may apply and possibly gain admission to an extended degree programme based on the policy on Assessment and Recognition of Previous Learning.
- If you have a weighted National Senior Certificate average (approved subjects) of below 55%, but higher than 50%, and if you are socio-economically disadvantaged, your church denomination may approach the Dean with a view to a Dean's discretionary admission. The Dean will consider this request in consultation with the Programme Committee chair.

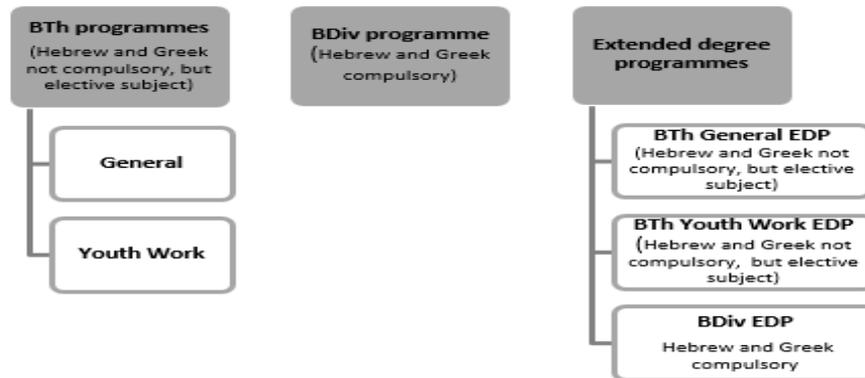

2. Computer literacy

Information Skills 172(6) is a compulsory module of the BTh and BDiv programmes, as computer skills are becoming increasingly essential in congregational work.

Academic Literacy for Theology 178 (8) is a compulsory module of the extended degree programmes (BTh and BDiv). This module aims to promote the academic and digital literacy and development of theology students; thus it focuses on the reading, writing and researching knowledge, skills and attitudes required to become a successful student of theology.

3. Summary and explanation of undergraduate programmes

The following diagram offers a representation of the undergraduate bachelor's degree programmes in the Faculty of Theology, as well as the requirements with regard to Hebrew and Greek. The blocks under BTh programmes display the two fields of study. The three extended degree programmes that can be followed are set out in the blocks under extended degree programmes.

3.1 BTh programmes (NQF level 7)

Mission

Students and staff function as co-participants in this programme to develop in students the skills to reflect critically and theologically on the South African, African and global context. The programme strives for an engaging learning environment that fosters diverse, transformative and critical theological abilities. Once you have participated in this programme, you will have developed intercultural skills and the ability to discern social relevance.

Target Group

- Students who would like to become involved in diverse contexts in a church, community or institution from a theological perspective.
- Denominations or churches who employ ministers, persons who minister to children, youth workers or community workers. Greek and Hebrew are not required.
- Students who want to undergo general theological training or to specialise in youth work; the Faculty of Theology will issue on request a declaration that you have specialised in youth work.

Specific Admission Requirements

In addition to meeting the requirements for university admission, the following specific admission requirements for studying in the Faculty of Theology apply:

- An average final mark of at least 60% for the National Senior Certificate, excluding Life Orientation.
- A weighted average for the National Senior Certificate (approved subjects) of 60% or higher, if you do not have Theology as first choice; OR if you apply for Theology during the registration period.

Closing Date for Applications

You must apply before 30 September of the year preceding your studies.

Duration of Programme

The duration of the programme is three years of full-time study.

- This programme leads to the Postgraduate Diplomas in Theology, the MTh programmes, and the MPhil programmes in the Faculty of Theology.

For more information on admission to the postgraduate programme you are considering, please consult the relevant postgraduate programme's details in the Postgraduate Programmes chapter in this Calendar part.

Programme Outcomes

After completion of this programme, you will:

- be able to think theologically about the South African and African contexts, and realise how complex they are;
- be a thought leader who knows what is relevant to the society in which you find yourself and who can function in various cultures, which allows you to:
 - work effectively with others,
 - enter into dialogue with various Christian theological theories that you encounter, and integrate them into a whole, and
 - promote ethical decision-making in churches and communities;
- interpret religious texts such as the Bible from a theological understanding, which enables you to enter into critical and theological dialogue about issues such as reconciliation, equality, justice and peace; and you will have the ability to function as a leader in different faith communities because you know how to approach personal management and problem-solving from a theological perspective.

Programme Structure

A minimum number of students have to register for a module for the module to be presented.

Although Hebrew and Greek are not compulsory, you may take them as elective modules.

Besides the theological core curriculum, certain theological as well as non-theological elective modules are also relevant for training of community ministers, leaders in religious communities, such as youth workers, and people rendering service to those in need. You can take elective modules in Theology or in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. The table below sets out the General BTh programme structure, followed by a breakdown of the BTh programme with specialisation in Youth Work.

3.1.1 A breakdown of the programme structure of the General BTh programme over all three years of study

The number of credits specified below is the minimum requisite number of credits. You may take more credits than the specified minimum, provided there are no timetable clashes.

3.4 BDiv programme (604100) (NQF level 8)Target Group

- The BDiv programme offers professional theological training to denominations requiring Hebrew and Greek as part of their theological training.
- Follow this programme if you want to prepare yourself for the ministry, to become a religious leader in society and to offer aid to people in need.

Specific Admission Requirements

In addition to meeting the requirements for university admission, the following specific admission requirements for studying in the Faculty of Theology apply:

- An average final mark of at least 60% for the National Senior Certificate, excluding Life Orientation.
- A weighted average for the National Senior Certificate (approved subjects) of 60% or higher, if you do not have Theology as first choice; OR if you apply for Theology during the registration period.

Closing Date for Applications

You must apply before 30 September of the year preceding your studies.

Duration of Programme

The duration of the programme is four years of full-time study.

- This programme leads to the Postgraduate Diplomas in Theology, the MTh programmes, the MPhil programmes and the MDiv programme in the Faculty of Theology.

For more information on admission to the postgraduate programme you are considering, please consult the relevant postgraduate programme's details in the Postgraduate Programmes chapter in this Calendar part.

Programme Outcomes

After completion of this programme you will have:

- an extensive, systematic and integrated knowledge of all theological disciplines, bearing in mind the Bible in its original languages (Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek);
- knowledge of the principles and theory of theological hermeneutics;
- knowledge of the nature and functioning of the church;
- the ability to determine the context of ministry;
- the ability to communicate the Christian message effectively;
- the ability to point out the applicability of the Bible in the Southern African context;
- insight into the way in which perceptions of human dignity influence value systems;
- the ability to develop a contextual theory of practice about how faith communities should function within their own set of circumstances; and
- knowledge and an understanding of other faith traditions, especially in Africa.

Programme Structure

A minimum number of students have to register for a module for the module to be presented.

Depending on denominational preference, different levels of skill in the Biblical languages (Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek) are required of you. You must familiarise yourself with the requirements for Biblical languages as set by your specific denomination.

- At present the Dutch Reformed Church requires two years of study of Greek and Hebrew.
- At present the Uniting Reformed Church requires one year of study of Greek and Hebrew, as well as one year of training in a South African language besides the student's mother tongue, e.g. Afrikaans, English or Xhosa (see language modules offered by the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences).

Although the BDiv programme does not include any elective modules in the first year of study, you can take elective modules on second-year and third-year level.

In the fourth year of study, you must complete an important assignment (48 credits) in any of the six subdivisions of theology as a field of study. You have to submit it before or on 1 November, when an internal as well as an external examiner will assess them. The table below sets out the structure of the BDiv programme.

3.6 Extended degree programmes

Please note that the extended degree programme is currently undergoing a renewal process and its structure and modules may change in 2023.

Programme Description

The extended degree programme is an academic development programme. The three-year BTh programme is presented over four years as an extended degree programme. The four-year BDiv programme is presented over five years as an extended degree programme. In each of these two extended degree programmes the first-year modules are presented over two years. Thereafter, the modules per year are followed as for the standard BTh and BDiv programmes.

Specific Admission Requirements

In addition to meeting the requirements for university admission, the following specific admission requirements to be considered for an extended degree programme in the Faculty of Theology apply:

- If you have obtained a final mark below 60%, but at least 55% in the National Senior Certificate, you could possibly be admitted to an extended degree programme, but only after an interview with the Dean or his or her representative.
- If you have a weighted National Senior Certificate average (approved subjects) of below 55%, you may apply for admission and possibly gain admission to an extended degree programme based on the policy on Assessment and Recognition of Previous Learning.
- If you have a weighted National Senior Certificate average (approved subjects) of below 55%, but higher than 50%, and if you are socio-economically disadvantaged, your church denomination may approach the Dean with a view to a Dean's discretionary admission. The Dean will consider this request in consultation with the Programme Committee chair.

Closing Date for Applications

You must apply before 30 September of the year preceding your studies

Duration of Programme

The duration of the BTh extended degree programme is four years and the BDiv extended degree programme takes five years.

- If you follow the BTh extended degree programme the same continued study possibilities as for the standard BTh programmes apply and can lead to:
 - the Postgraduate Diplomas in Theology, the MTh programmes, and the MPhil programmes in the Faculty of Theology; or
- If you follow the BDiv extended degree programme the same continued study possibilities as for the standard BDiv programme apply and can lead to:
 - the Postgraduate Diplomas in Theology, the MTh programmes, the MPhil programmes and the MDiv programme in the Faculty of Theology.

For more information on admission to the postgraduate programme you are considering, please consult the relevant postgraduate programme's details in the Postgraduate Programmes chapter in this Calendar part.

Programme Structure

A minimum number of students have to register for a module for the module to be presented.

Although the extended degree programmes takes one year longer, the module contents of the BTh and BDiv extended degree programmes correspond with the module contents of the standard BTh and BDiv programmes.

Find more information on the module contents of undergraduate programmes in the chapter Subjects, Modules and Module Contents for All Undergraduate Programmes.

The curricula of the first two years of study of the different extended degree programmes are set out below.

Postgraduate Programmes

1. Summary and explanation of postgraduate programmes

The diagram below offers a representation of the postgraduate programmes offered in the Faculty of Theology, namely postgraduate diplomas, master's degrees and doctoral degrees. It also gives a summary of the options within the various programmes, under each block.

2. Postgraduate Diplomas

2.1 Postgraduate Diploma in Theology – PGDip (Theology) (445100) (NQF level 8)

Religion and Culture focus

The MPhil in Religion and Culture is preceded by a Postgraduate Diploma in Theology done with a Religion and Culture focus. You register for the Postgraduate Diploma in Theology, and for your research assignment you should research a theme that relates to Religion and Culture.

Target Group

- Students without any theological training, from a variety of backgrounds and disciplines and who have previously obtained a bachelor's (BSc, BA or similar) degree on NQF level 7.
- Students with a three-year qualification in theology (exit-level NQF level 7) who do not qualify to continue with an MDiv, MTh or Postgraduate Diploma in Theology in Christian Ministry.

Specific Admission Requirements

- Any bachelor's degree (NQF level 7) or equivalent qualification, that need not necessarily be in theology; or
- An equivalent qualification from this or another university or seminary approved for this purpose by Senate or by the Executive Committee acting on behalf of Senate.

Closing Date for Applications

- If you are a South African citizen, you must apply before 30 October of the year preceding study.
- If you are an international student, you must apply before 30 September of the year preceding study.

Duration of Programme

You can enrol to complete this programme in one year or over two years. If you choose to do the programme over two years, you will complete your research project in the second year.

Presentation Structure

- Electronic learning by using SUNLearn (the learning management system of Stellenbosch University), and MS Teams (the team collaboration platform of Stellenbosch University), which includes contemporary teaching techniques, online discussion groups with fellow students and lecturers and electronic assignments.
- Modules (year modules) are offered in block-contact sessions throughout the year.

Contact Sessions

Synchronous and asynchronous teaching and learning contact sessions will be conducted with the assistance of the SUNLearn and MS Teams platforms (details in the PGDip information booklet).

Orientation

Two orientation sessions are planned per year, each at the start of a semester. The purpose of these sessions is to provide students with necessary information, introduce them to lecturers, and answer general questions.

Teaching and Learning

This will be done in block-contact sessions throughout the year. A programme will be included in the programme guide and the module framework and will be distributed electronically at the beginning of each academic year.

Workshops

Workshops on research methodology, academic writing, selection and access to resources and the use of electronic databases will be presented. These workshops are compulsory for students enrolled for the research assignment (60-credit) module and will only be presented at the start of each year.

Assessment and Examination

Assessment of the 10-credit modules is by means of diagnostic, formative, and summative assessments as communicated in the module frameworks. The 60-credit module is assessed by means of a written research assignment and an oral examination which includes the writing of book reviews.

Submission dates for research assignments:

- 1 November for the December graduation; and
- 15 January for the March graduation.

The research assignment is examined by an internal, as well as an external examiner.

Take note: graduation is dependent on a student completing all modules successfully (i.e. minimum requirement of 50%).

Programme Outcomes

After completion of this programme, you:

- will have a broad overview of a variety of theological disciplines for your personal enrichment;
- could continue further studies/research in theology through the Master in Theology (NQF level 9), Master of Divinity (NQF level 9) or the Postgraduate Diploma in Theology in Christian Ministry (NQF level 8).

Programme Structure

The programme consists of:

- Six compulsory modules of 10 credits each. These six modules cover the six main subjects, Ecclesiology, Missiology (including Community Development), New Testament, Old Testament, Practical Theology, and Systematic Theology. These modules are offered in block sessions throughout the year.
- A research assignment in your field of specialisation. The research topic for the assignment will depend on your choice of elective module. The elective module is offered over one year and includes contact sessions on research methodology and academic writing, including sessions between the supervisor and the student.

One-year programme

We recommend that the following students consider the one-year programme:

- students who have already received training in theology, and
- students who are not employed full-time.

You will be expected to:

- Attend orientation sessions and sessions on research methodology and academic writing.
- Attend contact sessions for all six the 10-credit modules, do assignments and write exams.
- Write and submit a research assignment. This 60-credit module includes extensive reading in the area of specialisation as well as a research assignment and oral examinations.

Two-year programme

We recommend that the following students consider the two-year registration programme:

- students without any training in theology, and
- students who are employed full-time.

During the first year, you are expected to:

- Attend orientation sessions.
- Attend contact sessions for all six the 10-credit modules, do assignments, and write exams.

During the second year, you are expected to:

- Attend sessions on research methodology and academic writing.
- Write and submit a research assignment. This 60-credit module includes extensive reading in the area of specialisation as well as a research assignment and oral examinations.

2.2 Postgraduate Diploma in Theology in Christian Ministry – PG Dip (Theology) (Christian Ministry) (606100) (NQF level 8)

Target Group

- Prospective ministers, Christian leaders, and pastoral care givers from all denominations who want to receive supervised practical training;
 - in order to develop ministry skills within a specific denominational context by integrating theological theories with ministry practice.

Presentation

- The programme is presented by the Practical Theology and Missiology discipline group in co-operation with the Old and New Testament and the Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology discipline groups.
- The discipline group Practical Theology and Missiology is responsible for the selection and training of the supervisors and mentors, as well as for the allocation of congregations.
- The placement of candidates in congregations for congregational exposure is done in co-operation with the contracted churches before the orientation day, which takes place in November of the preceding year.

Specific Admission Requirements

- A MDiv (Church Ministry), as determined by the relevant church denomination.

Closing Date for Applications

- If you are a South African citizen, you must apply before 30 October of the year preceding study.
- If you are an international student, you must apply before 30 September of the year preceding study.

Duration of Programme

The duration of the programme is one year.

Assessment and Examination

The programme is subject to flexible assessment and you must hand in research reports and assignments during the first and second semester.

Programme Outcomes

After completion of this programme you will have:

- a theological-hermeneutical understanding of the ministry practice in faith communities;
- an understanding of the functioning of a practical theological ecclesiology;
- the ability to act as leader within different faith communities; and
- the ability to illustrate various ministry skills in opportunities created by the ministry practice.

Programme Structure

- The programme focuses on supervised professional training within a congregational context, in order to develop ministry skills.
- The training takes place under supervision of the Board of Governors and church councils of various church denominations in co-operation with the Faculty of Theology, in order to comply with the church's requirements regarding the admission and calling of ministers, Christian leaders and pastoral care givers.
- You do not attend any lectures for this programme. You work independently and must submit reports and assignments.

Course of the Programme

- All the prospective candidates and their mentors must attend an orientation day in November of the preceding year.
- The candidates report to the congregations at the beginning of the last full week in January.
- Students return to campus four times during the year:
 - In March: At this session the programme is set out by the programme co-ordinator and the lecturers explain the assignments and the requirements of the subdisciplines.
 - In May: The half-year assessment takes place over the course of one week. All assignments for the first semester are discussed at this session.
 - The last two full weeks in August: Final conversations with the curatorium take place and the assignments of the second semester are discussed.
 - The first week in November: After the candidates have completed their year-long ministry exposure in the congregations, the whole group meets for final feedback and assessment with the mentors and lecturers.
- Cross-cultural exposure:
 - Each candidate is expected to experience cross-cultural exposure at another denomination for a period of at least two weeks.
 - This cross-cultural exposure is organised in collaboration with the supervisor for a time and place as mutually agreed upon.

3. Master's Degrees3.1 MDiv (486101) (NQF level 9)Target Group*

The MDiv in Church Ministry offers professional theological training to ministers, clergy, pastors, lay workers, pastoral care givers and pastoral therapists for the ministry.

Specific Admission Requirements

- A BDiv degree; or
- Another qualification that is judged by Senate to be equivalent to the content of the four-year BDiv programme, as well as the bible languages requirements regarding the current BDiv degree.

Closing Date for Applications

- If you are a South African citizen, you must apply before 30 October of the year preceding study.
- If you are an international student, you must apply before 30 September of the year preceding study.

Duration of Programme

The duration of the MDiv programme is one year of full-time study.

Assessment and Examination

The assessment of the seven modules consists of flexible assessment (formative assessment) and formal examinations (summative assessment) that take place at the end of each module.

Programme Outcomes

After completion of this programme you will:

- have the ability to articulate your own practical theological ecclesiology;
- be able to describe the role of the church in society;
- be able to do congregational analyses in different contexts and situations;
- have an understanding of theoretical insights regarding church history and church polity, systematic ecclesiology and symbolism, homiletics and liturgy, Christian spirituality and the identity of a Christian leader;
- have developed a number of ministry and communications skills with regard to preaching, pastorate, community development and missionary leadership;
- have pastoral care and crisis ministry skills; and
- be able to implement an ecosystemic ministry within a pastoral policy of preventing marital and family problems.

Programme Structure

- The first semester starts in the middle of January and runs for 21 weeks. The second semester runs for 15 weeks.
- The different subthemes under the main themes are presented by means of a block approach and the integration of various theological disciplines.
- For the purpose of this programme, a week starts on a Tuesday and ends on a Monday in order to include the weekend.
- In May-June all the candidates go on a compulsory combined ecumenical tour of approximately two weeks.

Programme Content

The three main themes with their different subthemes are set out below:

- Pathos aspects
 - Church in society (contextuality): The role of the church in society within different contexts and ethical questions.
- Logos aspects
 - Church – history, systematic ecclesiology, Bible and worship (church identity): The nature and functions of the church; historical connections; church confessions and communication within the context of worship and liturgy.

- Ethos aspects
 - Discipleship, spirituality and ministry skills (ministry practice): The connection between Christian spirituality and leadership aimed at developing congregational spirituality within various forms of ministry. 4. MTh (NQF level 9)Target Group

The various MTh Programmes are aimed at students who wish to undertake advanced studies in a specific theological field of study.

Specific Admission Requirements

- Any degree programme in Theology at NQF level 8, or any other appropriate four-year qualification equivalent to a four-year training deemed by Senate to be suitable for the proposed study; and
 - you must comply with further requirements that the relevant discipline group may set;
 - during your Theology studies you must have maintained an average achievement of at least 60% in the subject in which you wish to acquire the MTh degree, and obtained an average of 60% in the final year of Theology-related studies preceding the MTh degree;
 - you must have applied in writing and have been admitted to the MTh programme by Senate, or by the Executive Committee acting on behalf of Senate; or
- A BAHons (Religious Studies) which you have obtained after a BA (with Theology) at this University, or some other honours degree deemed equivalent by Senate, or if you have achieved in another way a standard of competence in your particular field of study, deemed adequate by Senate; and
 - you must comply with further requirements that the relevant discipline group may set;
 - during your Theology studies you must have maintained an average achievement of at least 60% in the subject in which you wish to acquire the MTh degree, and obtained an average of 60% in the final year of Theology-related studies preceding the MTh degree;
 - you must have applied in writing and have been admitted to the MTh programme by Senate, or by the Executive Committee acting on behalf of Senate; or
- If you have passed this University's Postgraduate Diploma in Theology with an average of at least 65%, and received a mark of at least 60% for the research assignment in the subject in which you wish to obtain the MTh degree, you may apply to sit for an admission examination, as determined by the relevant discipline group, with a view to enrolment for the MTh programme.
- If you wish to write an MTh thesis, you must submit a research proposal in which the research problem, the research methodology and the method of work are set out to the satisfaction of your supervisor(s).

Supplementary Language Requirements

- If you do not meet the language requirements such as German, Latin, etc. as set by the relevant discipline group, you must supplement the language requirements preferably before, or otherwise during, the first phase of the MTh programme.
- If you must do supplementary studies in Greek and Ancient Near Eastern Languages and Cultures with a view to registration for the programmes MTh and PhD, you must report to the relevant discipline groups before 1 October of the preceding year, so that special arrangements can be made for you.

- International candidates who have obtained their qualifications from tertiary institutions where English is not the language of instruction are required to provide proof of English Language proficiency. This evidence must accompany your application and must not be older than 24 months from the date of application to the University.
 - The minimum English language requirements and recognised language tests for admission to Stellenbosch University's postgraduate degree programmes are available via the Prospective Postgraduate Student website (<http://www.sun.ac.za/english/pgstudies/Pages/English-language-proficiency-requirements.aspx>).
- You will not be allowed to take any examination in the programme for which you are registered before a certificate in English communication skills has been obtained.

Supplementary requirements with regard to major subjects

The following additional requirements apply to the various subjects when they are chosen as major subjects for MTh studies. If you do not meet these requirements, you must complete the outstanding module(s).

- Ecclesiology: If necessary, Latin I.
- New Testament: Appropriate language requirements as determined by the discipline group in the light of your research proposal.
- Old Testament: Appropriate language requirements as determined by the discipline group in the light of your research proposal.
- Old and New Testament: Appropriate language requirements as determined by the discipline group in the light of your research proposal.
- Systematic Theology: Relevant requirements as determined by the discipline group.
- The supervisor can also recommend that the Faculty of Theology set additional requirements necessary for a particular field of study.

Closing Date for Applications

- Admissions of new applications for MTh programmes are considered twice a year, namely in May and October. Therefore, if you have not obtained your preceding qualification at this university, the closing dates for applications are:
 - 1 May (for enrolment as from the second semester); or
 - preferably, 1 October (for enrolment as from the first semester of the following year).
- If you have obtained your preceding qualification at SU, your application will be considered immediately.
- Apply to the Registrar and state your area of specialisation.
- Direct queries about the application procedure to the Faculty administrator at shirle@sun.ac.za.

Duration of Programme

- The duration of the MTh programme is at least one year.
- A supervisor may, after consultation with the discipline concerned, require a minimum period of six months' residence for MTh students from outside Southern Africa.

Assessment and Examination

- Of candidates following the structured option, also called 889 candidates:
 - Students (excluding Clinical Pastorate and Ministry Practice) do a final oral examination which covers the assignment and (where applicable) the evaluation of practical work. The examination is set by at least the discipline groups involved with the main subject and supplementary subjects.
 - The research assignment must be approximately 50–60 pages long.
 - Assignments are discussed as part of the examination:
 - You must hand in an electronic pdf version and at least three printed copies of the assignment at the administrative officer of the disciplinary group concerned in time for the final examination; or
 - You must hand in at least eight printed copies of the assignment at the administrative officer of the disciplinary group concerned in time for the final examination.
 - If you are a student in the MTh (Practical Theology: Clinical Pastoral Care), MTh (Practical Theology: Ministry) and MTh (Practical Theology: Youth Ministry), you must refer to the Faculty of Theology's Postgraduate Policy and Agreement document, which you have received during registration.
 - The research assignment is examined and moderated internally and is also examined externally.
- Of candidates following the thesis option, also called 879 candidates:
 - You do a final oral examination which covers the thesis and (where applicable) the evaluation of practical work. The examination is set by at least the discipline groups involved with the main subject and supplementary subjects.
 - When you, as 879 candidate, declare yourself ready for the examination, and should your thesis be examined in the presence of the Faculty Board, you must:
 - hand in an electronic pdf version and at least three printed copies of the thesis either before 1 September (for the December graduation ceremony) or before 1 December (for the March graduation ceremony) at the administrative officer of the disciplinary group concerned; or
 - hand in at least eight printed copies of the thesis either before 1 September (for the December graduation ceremony) or before 1 December (for the March graduation ceremony) at the administrative officer of the disciplinary group concerned.

- The examination of the thesis is conducted in accordance with the Faculty's Guidelines for Administration and Supervision of Postgraduate Study.
- For the technical requirements in respect of the appearance, duplication and binding of theses, see Part 1 (General) of the Calendar.
- Also see Part 1 (General) of the Calendar for general regulations in respect of examiners for master's theses.

Programme Structure

To obtain the MTh degree, you can follow one of two options:

- You follow a structured option (also called the 889 option) and obtain the degree if you:
 - successfully complete four examination papers in your field of specialisation and one paper in each of the supplementary subjects; and
 - successfully defend an assignment in which especially the problem, the research hypothesis and methodology in respect of a particular theme are dealt with, before the Faculty; or
- You follow a thesis option (also called the 879 option) and obtain the degree if you:
 - successfully complete two examination papers in your field of specialisation and a paper in one supplementary subject; and
 - successfully defend a thesis before the Faculty.

Course of the Programme

- You register for the modules and assignment or thesis concerned at the administrative officer of the discipline group in which you wish to specialise.
- After registering for the programme, you will receive a policy document from the relevant discipline group containing clear guidelines concerning the respective responsibilities of the student and the supervisor, regular discussions, progress reports, examination procedures, assessment criteria for theses and other regulations as set out by the discipline group.
- Discipline groups annually report to the Faculty on the progress of students.
- You must take note of all fees and possible additional levies as specified in Part 3 (Student Fees) of the Calendar, or you must consult the Student Fees Division.

Licensing for the Ministry

If you wish to present yourself for licensing for the ministry of a specific denomination, you can, during your MTh study, complete the outstanding modules for the MDiv and or Postgraduate Programme in Theology in Christian Ministry to the satisfaction of the licensing body of the church concerned.

Programme Content

- The MTh structured option (also called the 889 option), as well as the MTh thesis option (also called the 879 option) can be followed in one of the following theological disciplines:
 - Ecclesiology
 - Missiology
 - New Testament
 - Old Testament
 - Practical Theology
 - Systematic Theology
- You may take supplementary subjects presented in departments in other faculties of this University.
- The specific modules that you follow in each of the theological disciplines are set out under the specific MTh structured programmes.

Duration of Programme

- The duration of the programme is at least one year.
- A supervisor may, after consultation with the discipline concerned, require a minimum period of six months' residence for MTh students from outside Southern Africa.

Programme Structure

Because the programmes MPhil in Chaplaincy Studies and MTh Clinical Pastorate are being phased out, you can now follow the following two focuses in MTh in Practical Theology (General) too:

- Chaplaincy Studies focus

You register for the MTh (structured option) in Practical Theology, and also take two Chaplaincy Studies modules in the Faculty of Military Science. For your MTh research assignment, you must research a theme that relates to Chaplaincy Studies.

OR

- Pastorate focus

If you who want to specialise in Pastorate, you must register for four modules in practical theology and choose one module in each of two supplementary subjects. For your MTh research assignment, you must research a topic that relates to Pastorate.

4.1.7 MTh in Practical Theology (Specialisation)4.1.7.1 MTh in Practical Theology*Clinical Pastorate (50806: 889)Specific Admission Requirements*

- See specific, as well as supplementary admission requirements as for all MTh programmes. Students from therapeutic environments (medical/paramedical disciplines such as clinical psychology, physiotherapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy and hearing therapy) in possession of a four-year degree can apply and qualify for selection.
- If you have a minimum of four-year qualification, you can apply online (www.maties.com) for this programme.
- A maximum of eight students will be admitted to the programme per year.
- Once your application has been received by the department, an internal application form will be sent to you to complete with a view to selection for the programme.
- All applications must reach the University before 15 September.

Duration of Programme

This programme is presented part-time over a period of at least two years. Students are required to attend three one-week block courses in the first year, and three one-week block courses in the second year, while residing in Stellenbosch. Attendance of these block courses is compulsory, as the block courses form part of the assessment.

Assessment and Examination

Besides your class mark for clinical work, your final mark is calculated on the basis of nine examinations and assignments in respect of the compulsory subjects.

Programme Content

The purpose of this programme is to integrate pastoral theology with praxis theory. Training takes place under supervision in a clinical situation.

 - If you want to specialise in Religion and Culture, you register for the Postgraduate Diploma in Theology. For your research assignment you should research a theme that relates to Religion and Culture.
- See Postgraduate Diploma in Theology under Postgraduate Diplomas.

5.1.2 MPhil in Religion and Culture (11646:889)

Presentation

- The programme is presented by the discipline of Practical Theology and Missiology of the Faculty of Theology at Stellenbosch University in co-operation with Humboldt University in Berlin.
- Mode of teaching: class work, lectures, prescribed work.
- Medium of instruction: English.

Specific Admission Requirements

- See specific as well as supplementary admission requirements as for all MTh programmes.
- If you hold only a three-year B-degree qualification, you must first complete a Postgraduate Diploma in Theology (with the focus on Religion and Culture) and pass with an average of at least 65%, to enrol for the MPhil; or
- If you hold a four-year qualification that is not equivalent to a Honours degree in Theology, this Postgraduate Diploma in Theology (with the focus on Religion and Culture) serves as a bridging qualification; but
- If you do hold an appropriate four-year qualification in Theology you can enrol directly for the MPhil without having to complete the Postgraduate Diploma in Theology (with the focus on Religion and Culture) first, or
- Because the degree is presented in co-operation with Humboldt University in Berlin, Germany, a three- or four-year degree from that university or an equivalent qualification from the abovementioned university that complies with the admission requirements will also be accepted.

Closing Date for Applications

- If you are a South African citizen, you must apply before 30 October of the year preceding your studies.
- If you are an international student, you must apply before 30 September of the year preceding your studies.

Duration of Programme

The duration of the programme is at least one year.

Assessment and Examination

To successfully complete this programme, you must do a number of assignments and take tests or examinations orally or in writing. You must also submit a thesis on a relevant research topic.

Programme Structure

The MPhil in Religion and Culture is presented at NQF level 9 and consists of four lectured modules to the value of 80 credits, as well as a thesis to the value of 100 credits that has to be completed on a theme related to Religion and Culture.

6. Master's Degrees in Theology: Collaboration

Presentation

Master's degrees in Theology are presented in collaboration with the Cluster of Theological Institutions in the Western Cape.

- At present, the members of the Cluster are:
 - Department of Religion and Theology, University of the Western Cape;
 - Department of Religious Studies, University of Cape Town;
 - Faculty of Theology, Stellenbosch University and related departments at Stellenbosch University; and
 - Helderberg College in Somerset West.

Closing Date for Applications

- If you are a South African citizen, you must apply before 30 October of the year preceding study.
- If you are an international student, you must apply before 30 September of the year preceding study.

Application Procedure

- Applications to take part in the exchange programme are subject to the approval of the host institutions.
- Get information on the master's degree programmes that are presented within the Cluster of Theological Institutions in the Western Cape from the Faculty administrator of the Faculty of Theology and at the other participating institutions.

Programme Structure

- If you enrol for a structured master's programme you can take certain components or modules of the programme at one or more members of the Cluster of Theological Institutions of the Western Cape.
- You need not register at the guest institutions nor settle financial obligations there in respect of registration or training. You will thus only be registered at Stellenbosch University if you register with the Faculty of Theology and related departments.

Course of Programme

- In terms of the agreement among the abovementioned partners, you who are registered with the Faculty of Theology and related departments of Stellenbosch University may take modules of a structured master's programme presented by any of the other participating institutions. After such modules have been completed successfully, you will be credited by the Faculty of Theology and related departments of Stellenbosch University for modules of the MTh/MPhil programme that have been replaced with modules taken at other institutions.

The following procedures apply:

- You must apply in writing to the Faculty administrator of the Faculty of Theology at least two weeks before the final date for registration.
- You must indicate clearly which module(s) of the Faculty of Theology and related departments of Stellenbosch University you wish to replace and which module(s) presented by other participating institutions you wish to take instead.
- Get information on the number of modules per programme that may be replaced from the institution where you are registered.
- You must register with Stellenbosch University for the components of the structured master's programme that you wish to take at a participating institution.

7. Doctoral Degrees

- to pass the preliminary examination, you must achieve a final mark of at least 50% in each of the papers in the main subject group and achieve a final mark of at least 50% in each of the two supplementary subjects; or
- be in possession of the MTh degree (structured option) of this University with a minimum final mark of 60% and have obtained a minimum final mark of 70% in the research assignment, and have completed any relevant supplementary work that may be required, on condition that:
 - if you have enrolled for the MTh programme before 1985, you must take a preliminary examination consisting of four papers (written or oral) on the major subject group, one paper (written or oral) on each of the two supplementary subjects, and an oral examination before the Faculty of Theology; and
 - to pass the preliminary examination, you must achieve a final mark of at least 50% in each of the papers in the main subject group and achieve a final mark of at least 50% in each of the two supplementary subjects; or
- be in possession of a MDiv degree of this University with a minimum final mark of 70% and have obtained a minimum final mark of 70% in the research assignment, which usually explores a cognate discipline or area of study, and have completed any relevant supplementary work that may be required as determined by the discipline group; or
- be in possession of a MPhil (Religion and Culture) degree of this University with a minimum final mark of 60%, and have completed any relevant supplementary work in consultation with the discipline group concerned; or
- have achieved a level of competence in your particular field of study in some other way that Senate considers to be adequate for this purpose.
- In addition to the above requirements regarding minimum final marks, students from another university should be in the possession of a full research master's degree or a master's degree with a significant research component.

Supplementary Requirements

In conjunction with the supervisor, the Faculty of Theology can determine any additional requirements that may be necessary for a specific field of study. The following additional requirements for admission to PhD studies have been set by the disciplines Old Testament and New Testament respectively:

- For Old Testament: Biblical Hebrew III, or an equivalent qualification;
- For New Testament: Greek III, or an equivalent qualification;
 - Exceptions may be made with regard to the Biblical Hebrew III or Greek III requirements in cases where the Ancient Languages are not important to the theme of the dissertation;
- Requirements with regard to language skills for international students with English as a second language. See supplementary language requirements under "MTh admission requirements".

Submission of your Research Proposal

- When considering the applications, the disciplinary groups will contact you to get an indication of the specific subdiscipline you want to specialise in.
- On admission you will be allocated a supervisor, according to availability, in order to assist you in preparing a research proposal.
- You can register as student only after the Faculty's Research Committee has approved your research proposal. This process takes a number of months.

Closing Date for Applications

- Admissions of new applications for PhD programmes are considered twice a year, namely in May and October. Therefore, if you have not obtained your preceding qualification at this university, the closing dates for applications are:
 - 1 May; or
 - more preferably 1 October.
- Students will be notified of the results after the selection meetings, after which a research proposal must be prepared in consultation with a promoter. After approval of the proposal by the faculty board and confirmation of admission by Senate, registration for the PhD is possible.
- If you have obtained your preceding qualification at SU, you can apply throughout the year.
- Submit your application to the Registrar and state your area of specialisation.
- Direct queries about the application procedure to the Faculty administrator at shirle@sun.ac.za.

Duration of Programme

- You must be enrolled for the PhD programme for at least two years before you can report for the final examination; and
- A supervisor may, after consultation with the environment concerned, require a minimum period of six months' residence for PhD students from outside Southern Africa.

Programme Description

- As candidate for the PhD degree you must submit, for Senate's approval, a dissertation which:
 - deals with a subject in your main field of study;
 - may only be submitted two years after the MTh degree has been obtained; or
 - after you have achieved a level of competence in the specific field of study in some other way that Senate considers to be adequate for the purpose.

- After registration for the PhD, you will receive a policy document from the relevant discipline group containing clear guidelines on the responsibilities of candidates and their supervisors, regular discussions, progress reports, examination procedures, assessment criteria for dissertations and other regulations of the discipline group.
- You must deliver a report on your research at least once during a postgraduate seminar.
- Discipline groups report annually to the Faculty on the progress of doctoral candidates.
- You must take note of all fees and possible additional levies as specified in Part 3 (Student Fees) of the Calendar, or you must consult the Student Fees Division.

Assessment and Examination

Completion and submission of your Dissertation

- When you present yourself for examination, you must:
 - hand in an electronic pdf version and at least four printed copies of the dissertation at the administrative officer of the disciplinary group concerned, either before 1 September (for the December graduation ceremony) or before 1 December (for the March graduation ceremony); or
 - hand in at least 11 printed copies of the dissertation at the administrative officer of the disciplinary group concerned, either before 1 September (for the December graduation ceremony) or before 1 December (for the March graduation ceremony).
- You do a final oral examination that deals with the dissertation. The examination is set by the Faculty Board, and the supervisor, the internal examiner and, if practically possible, the external examiners must be present.
 - Consult Part 1 (General) of the Calendar for the general regulations for doctoral programmes with regard to examinations and examiners for doctoral dissertations.
- Where applicable and feasible, and taking into account the requirements set by the University, you are encouraged, before reporting for the examination, to submit a manuscript or manuscripts on the results of your research for publication in recognised academic journals.
- For technical guidelines on the appearance, duplication and binding of dissertations, consult Part 1 (General) of the Calendar.

Subjects, Modules and Module Content for All Undergraduate Programmes

1. Definitions and explanations of important terms

It is important that you take note of the definitions of a few terms in order to understand and use this chapter fully. The example below shows how these terms will appear in this chapter.

Example:

50547 Old and New Testament
114 (16) Introduction to the Old and New Testament (2L, 1T)

1.1 Explanation of the abovementioned terms

- Five-digit subject number 50547 Old and New Testament
 Each subject is identified by this five-digit subject number.
- Subject name 50547 Old and New Testament
 The name of the specific subject is indicated only after the five-digit subject number, before the various modules of the subject offered. Normally the subject name is followed by the module code and the credit value of the specific code, for example in this case: Old and New Testament 114 (16)
- Module code 114 (16) Introduction to the Old and New Testament (2L, 1T)
 The module code consists of a three-digit number that is unique to the specific module. The abovementioned module code “114” has the following meaning:
 - The first digit refers to the year of study in which the module is presented, for example:
 Year 1: 114
 Year 2: 214
 Year 3: 314
 - The second digit “1” refers to the semester that the module will be presented in and also serves as a number to distinguish between various modules of the same subject offered in a specific year of study. The University uses different numbers to indicate the particular semester of a module, either the first or the second semester or modules that are presented in both semesters (which are year modules). The numbers that indicate semesters are as follows:
 - 1, 2 of 3 – modules are presented in the first semester.
 Semester 1: 114, 422, 234
 - 4, 5 of 6 – modules are presented in the second semester.
 Semester 2: 143, 252, 262
 - 7, 8 of 9 – modules are presented in both semesters, which are year modules.
 Year module (both semesters): 478, 288, 391
 - The third digit of the module code 114 serves as a distinguishing digit between various modules of the same subject in a particular year of study.
- Credit value 114 (16) Introduction to the Old and New Testament (2L, 1T)
 The number in brackets indicates the credit value of the particular module, in this case 16.
- Module subject 114 (16) Introduction to the Old and New Testament (2L, 1T)
 This indicates the subject that will be dealt with in this specific module.
- Teaching load (2L, 1T)
 The teaching load of a module is indicated in the block following the module subject. It gives you both the teaching load and the type of teaching per week that you can expect in this particular module. For the module Old and New Testament 114(16) you can expect two lectures and one tutorial per week for the duration of the module, namely during the first semester. The following abbreviations are used for the teaching load:
 - L – Lectures lasting 50 minutes, for example 1L, 3L
 - P – Practical period lasting 50 minutes, for example 1P, 2P, 3P
 - S – Seminar lasting 50 minutes, for example 1S, 2S
 - T – Tutorial lasting 50 minutes, for example 1T, 2T

2. Prerequisite pass, prerequisite and corequisite modules

After the description of the content of the module, the prerequisite pass, prerequisite and corequisite modules, where applicable, are given for that module. The following abbreviations are used:

- Prerequisite pass module
 - A prerequisite pass module is a module which you must pass before you can take the module(s) for which it is a prerequisite pass module.
- Prerequisite module
 - A prerequisite module is a module in which you must achieve a class mark of at least 40, or a final mark of at least 40 in the case of a module subject to flexible assessment, before you can take the module for which it is a prerequisite module.
- Corequisite module
 - A corequisite module is a module that you must take in the same academic year as the module for which it is a corequisite, or in an earlier academic year.

2.1 Condition for the granting of a qualification or degree

The Faculty will only award a qualification if you have passed all the relevant prerequisite and corequisite modules of the specific programme.

3. Assessment of modules

Modules are assessed by means of tests and examination unless otherwise indicated in the module content.

4. Subjects, modules and module contents

Subjects with their accompanying modules, credits, module subjects teaching loads, language specifications and module contents are presented below.

Please consult the appropriate volumes of the SU Calendar for all other elective modules at other faculties.

13864 Academic Literacy for Theology

114 (8) Academic Literacy for Theology (1L, 1T)

Objectives

This module aims to equip students with the basic skills required to successfully function and perform within the higher education environment.

Content

Students will be guided to:

- A basic understanding of essential university environments, processes and expectations.
- Acquire a basic understanding, competencies and skills to work on some online and offline technological platforms.

Outcomes

After completion of the module, the student will be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the higher education academic environment, processes and expectations by:
 - Using critical thinking in cross-cultural academic contexts by engaging in discussions on the multicultural nature of the higher education context;
 - Practising and exercising, according to the module framework, scenarios which demonstrate their understanding of readings;
 - Being able to take relevant notes during lectures and make annotations to indicate understanding of lectures;
 - Offering their own understanding, either orally or in annotations, through explaining expectations of academic tasks and assignments for assessments; and
 - Showing the detailed layout of their own academic planning.
- Demonstrate an acquired understanding and competency to work on online and offline technological platforms by:
 - Describing, comparing and analysing the difference between the functions of laptops and computers;
 - Knowing and performing the basic operations of computers;
 - Organising and saving electronic files;
 - Understanding and navigating the internet (websites, emails, URLs, links, networks, etc.);
 - Confidently communicating with lecturers and peers using mobile technology; and
 - Identifying appropriate and effectively using and communicating using online help options.

144 (8) Academic Literacy for Theology (1L, 1T)Objectives

This module aims to promote and develop academic and digital literacy and the appropriate knowledge, skills and attitudes to become a successful Theology student and competent professional.

ContentAcademic Literacy and Skills Development

- Reading and writing strategies
- Referencing techniques
- Time-management and learning skills
- Computer literacy
 - Basic computer skills (including university systems, SUNLearn, MS Word, PowerPoint and Mendeley)
 - Communication and presentation skills

Outcomes

After completion of the module, the student will be able to:

- apply effective reading strategies to read theological texts;
- apply effective writing, summarising, paraphrasing and referencing skills for theological essays;
- do a literature search through the proper use of a library system and research database;
- strategically and appropriately use the internet for academic purposes;
- compile electronic documents, using MS Word, that meet the requirements of academic work;
- create electronic presentations at a basic level of proficiency;
- apply communication strategies and effectively present individual and group presentations;
- use time-management skills appropriately; and
- understand and apply different learning strategies for personal learning and content-specific needs.

12068 Ecclesiology143 (8) Church History 1: From Early Christianity to the Late Middle Ages (1L, 1T)Objectives*

To provide students with the necessary knowledge of important historical events, figures and thought streams in the early church and in the Middle Ages, and to guide them towards establishing a theological-historical interpretation framework regarding these periods.

Content

This module focuses on the history of the church and theology from the era of the early church to the High Middle Ages. We will study important figures, doctrines and thought streams of this period, asking as to the church-historical significance for our time. The underlying assumption of this module is that critical engagement with the past is crucial for dealing with the challenges facing the church and society today.

Outcomes

Success in this module will allow students to:

- acquire the necessary knowledge of the leading historical figures and thought streams in the early church and the Middle Ages;
- obtain a theological-historical orientation and interpretation framework with reference to these eras;
- integrate theological-historical knowledge and skills with their own context and potential ministries;
- realise the importance of the forgotten or muted voices that often do not figure prominently in church-historical accounts from these eras; and
- develop reading skills that can engage creatively and critically with primary sources as well as secondary literature.

Home department: Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology

211(8) Church History 2: From the 16th-century Reformations to the Present day (1L, 1T)

Objectives

To provide students with knowledge of important historical events, figures and streams in the Reformation and the early to late modern eras, and to guide them towards establishing a theological-historical interpretation framework regarding these periods.

Content

This module focuses on the church and theological history of the 16th-century Reformation and reformations, and the aftermath. It explores important figures, events and streams of thought from this period, asking as to the church-historical significance for our time. The underlying assumption of this module is that critical engagement with the past is essential for dealing with the challenges facing church and society today.

Outcomes

Success in this module will enable students to:

- acquire knowledge of the relevant figures, events, practices and intellectual currents of this period, embedded in the framework of a responsible historical and theological hermeneutic;
- obtain a theological-historical interpretation framework as regards this period;
- become aware of the importance of forgotten or muted voices, those that often do not figure prominently in church-historical accounts from this period;
- become aware of the influence and the determining impact of the Reformation and its aftermath on the contemporary worldview as well as students' respective church traditions;
- integrate theological-historical knowledge and skills with their own context and potential ministries; and
- develop church-historical reading and writing skills which can engage creatively and critically with primary sources as well as secondary literature.

253(8) Denominational History, Polity, Theology and Practice (1L, 1T)

Objectives

To provide an ecumenical introduction to the scope and main themes of church polity; and, therefore, to explore the relation between ecumenism and church polity.

Content

This module focusses on denomination-specific history, polity and practice. Students will study denominational sources (such as theologies, histories, polities and liturgies) to gain a critical understanding of the identity and practices of the denomination concerned.

Outcomes

Success in this module will enable students to:

- reflect critically on denominational identity and history;
- think, reflect and write theologically within their chosen denominational framework;
- relate to the ecumenical community – appreciate the church's responsibility towards the social, political, economic and educational challenges in contemporary South African civil society; and
- articulate and engage with the polity of their chosen denomination in a critical and theological manner.

Home department: Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology

352(8) South African Church History in Global Perspective (1L, 1T)

Objectives

To explore with students South African Christianity within the context of the times and with reference to its contemporary relevance, with special attention to important figures and streams of thought from the relevant era, and to relevant themes from the history of theology, of missionary work and of spirituality.

Content

This module focuses on the religious and theological history of Christianity in South Africa from the 17th century until the late 20th century. Students will study important figures, events and streams of thought from this period, asking as to the church-historical significance for our current context. The underlying assumption of this module is that critical engagement with the past is essential for dealing with the challenges facing church and society today.

Outcomes

Success in this module will enable students to:

- acquire knowledge of the relevant figures, events, practices and intellectual currents of this period, embedded in the framework of a responsible historical and theological hermeneutic;
- obtain a theological-historical interpretation framework as regards this period;
- become aware of the importance of forgotten or muted voices; those that often do not figure prominently in church-historical accounts from this period;

- become aware of the influence and determining impact of the Reformation and its aftermath on the contemporary political and social context in South Africa as well as students' respective church traditions;
- integrate theological-historical knowledge and skills with their own context and potential ministries; and
- help foster church-historical reading and writing skills which can engage creatively and critically with primary sources as well as secondary literature.

Prerequisite pass modules: Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology 114

423 (8) Historiography, Biography, and Social/Cultural Movements in Church History (1L, 1T)

Objectives

To sensitise students to the uses and abuses of biography as a genre of historiography, but also to highlight the important figures and currents from Christian history; thus affording students the opportunity to learn about important people and movements that are not covered in detail in the earlier years of study.

Content

This module approaches biography as a historiographical method, and identifies both the problems and the challenges of biography and historiography.

Different approaches to biography as an academic genre or method are juxtaposed. The module considers primarily how biographical studies could enhance church-historical research and teaching.

Outcomes

Success in this module will enable students to:

- write historiographically on themes related to memory and remembering;
- gain knowledge of a specific person or movement in church and theological history, and a sense of how this person or movement was appropriated during different historical epochs and in their historical context;
- relate the biography and spirituality of the chosen historical figure to his or her theological views and vice versa;
- read texts by an important figure or movement responsibly, with due awareness of the historical context in which these texts developed and of their relationship to other texts by the same author or from the same period;
- write a biographical essay of high quality on an aspect of the life and theology of their chosen figure or movement; and
- relate the chosen figure or movement to contemporary challenges and ministry.

Prerequisite pass modules: Ecclesiology 143, 211

244 (16) African Religions and Ecumenism (2L, 1P)Objectives

This module maps interactions and encounters of individuals, groups and communities from three world religions (African Indigenous Religions, African Christianity, and African Islam) in neighbourhoods, social and religious movements and organisations, schools, colleges and universities, workplaces, hospitals, correctional services, the military, and other public places. Differing cultural, faith and missional commitments, shaped by cultural, religious and theological traditions, influence responses to cultural and religious diversity as a fact, a social phenomenon. The module employs a storytelling methodology and a praxis cycle approach to explore the relationship between intercultural and interfaith interactions and responses to diversity by adherents or members of the three religions (interreligious ecumenism in Africa) and of different Christian denominations (intra-religious ecumenism in Africa). The approach deduces the implications that this relationship has for the formation and transformation of persons, systems and structures through religious, spiritual and social service, dialogue and witness in the contexts and texts of the religions concerned.

Content

Interactions and responses of adherents or members and intercultural, interfaith and missional leaders to diversity in everyday life and the media (Immersion, Encounters and Responses in Intercultural, Interfaith and Missional Theory, Theology and Hermeneutics).

Formation and transformation of religious and spiritual identities, attitudes and behaviours within and between contexts and the contents of the three religions under discussion (Personal and Interpersonal Formation and Transformation in Responses to Diversity in African contexts).

Historical and contemporary stories and case studies of religious, spiritual and social service, dialogue and witness in the contexts and texts of religions as resources of intercultural, interfaith missional encounters (Knowledge, Modes and Methods of Encounters and Practices of Faith-based Communities, Movements, Organisations and Institutions).

Beliefs, values and practices in cultural, religious and theological world views, typologies and models which individuals and groups select and incorporate in stories and responses to diversity (Religious Cosmologies and Lived Religions in African Theologies, Theologies of Cultures and Theologies of Religions).

Leadership skills for practicing inclusivity and hospitality (ubuntu) through relationships, activities and projects for the common good, and for social and structural transformation of communities, movements, organisations and institutions in African contexts (Practical-Ethical Bridge as a Mutuality Model in African Theology of Religions)

Outcomes

Success in this module will allow students to:

- use basic ethnographic and story-telling methodologies in the praxis cycle approach to observe, participate in and make sense of encounters and practices of individuals and groups in social, cultural and religious spaces and in the media;
- acquire knowledge about cultural and theological responses (attitudes, behaviour and actions) to diversity;
- gain insight into the beliefs, values and practices of the African Indigenous Religions, Christianity and Islam in Africa;
- acquire academic skills to compare concepts, models and typologies in intercultural theologies, African theologies and theologies of religions to understand intercultural, interfaith and missional encounters and responses of people who orient differently regarding culture and religion;
- develop leadership skills for reflecting on personal and intergroup narratives, identity formation and belonging in culturally and religiously diverse contexts; and
- apply the praxis cycle approach to outline the interactions and influences between cultural and religious beliefs, values and experiences on one hand and personal and interpersonal identities on the other; and the roles of individuals and groups in transformational or ecumenical missional practices and processes of faith communities.

Prerequisite pass module: Missiology 142

Home department: Practical Theology and Missiology

442 (16) Trends in Missiology and Science of Religion (2L, 1T)Objectives

An in-depth study of selected interreligious themes and practices in at least three religions in Africa (African Traditional Religions, Christianity, Islam, Buddhism and Hinduism).

Insight into what and how theories, theologies and methods of Current Trends in Missiology (Intercultural Theology Perspective) and Science of Religion have shaped general and specific approaches to the themes and practices in religions and faith-based organisations.

Insight into and re-think (critical reflection) the nature and influence of individual and (inter)group identities and roles on intercultural and interreligious hospitality, encounters, conversations, dialogue, social service, formation, and personal reflections.

Understand and apply practice-based (problem-solving and transformative) Missiological and Science of Religion approaches to interreligious challenges and problems in faith-based communities and other publics.

Content

Current trends in comparative religious and theological approaches in religion and theology: background, theories and methods.
 Postcolonial theories in Missiology and Science of Religion.
 Intercultural and interreligious theology: background, theories, theologies and methods.
 Contents, rituals, practices, ethics and institutions of Christianity, African Traditional Religions, Islam, Hinduism and Buddhism.

144 (8) Philosophy for Theologians (1L, 1T)

Objectives

To provide students with an introduction to a number of important philosophers / philosophical streams/ philosophical questions that are important for theological investigation.

Content

The first part of the module investigates the close and complex relationship between Philosophy and Theology. Attention is given to the way in which a philosophical conceptual thought-framework may be of value for theological investigation.

The rest of the module offers students an introduction to important philosophers and philosophical streams, with specific attention to their influence on Theology and theologians. In the process, students are exposed to important debates in, for example, philosophy of religion, philosophy of history, hermeneutics and philosophy of science.

Outcomes

Developing an understanding for the close and complex relationship between Theology and Philosophy.

Understanding in what way a conceptual philosophical thought-framework is of value in theological investigations.

Generating introductory knowledge of important philosophers/philosophical streams.

Developing knowledge and skills regarding the way in which these philosophers and philosophical streams have influenced Theology, as well as the way in which theological issues were central for some philosophers/philosophical streams.

212 (8) Doctrine of God (1L, 1P)

Objectives

To introduce students to different approaches to the doctrine of God and the doctrine of the creation of human beings and providence, as these doctrines have been contemplated in the history of theology and in current systematic theology, and to develop in students the necessary skills to reflect on these doctrines critically and defend an independent point of view.

Content

Within the broader Trinitarian framework – within which Christology and Pneumatology (with their related themes) come up for discussion elsewhere in the study trajectory – this module focuses on questions regarding knowledge of God; the existence, nature and characteristics of God; the Trinity and those aspects of God's involvement in reality that traditionally, although not exclusively, have been linked to God as "Father" (or the "first Person of the Trinity") – to wit the creation, specifically also human beings as creatures and sinners, and providence – as they have come up for discussion in the course of the history of theology and still come up in current systematic theology. Changes and differences in opinion in reflections on this are highlighted to make it clear that there has never been, and currently also is not, only one way of understanding these matters. Precisely for this reason, the development and use of hermeneutical and other thinking skills are also emphasised to evaluate the different points of view critically and to defend a personal point of view. Part of this lies in being able to see the importance of context as well as the ethical and existential implications of different points of view, and to make students aware of critical questions being posed from non-theological and non-Christian perspectives.

Outcomes

Have gained a broad knowledge of the historical development of the doctrine of God and the doctrine of creation, humanity and providence.

Understand the different systematic-theological standpoints on the nature and characteristics of God, the creation, humanity and providence.

Can draw links between the different theological points of view and the contexts in which they are formulated and assessed – including current African contexts.

Can explain and debate a number of philosophical and scientific questions that arise regarding the doctrines concerned.

Can formulate an independent understanding of the doctrines clearly and systematically and can defend such understanding in an argument.

Can point out the ethical and existential consequences of such understanding of these doctrines.

Home department: Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology

245 (8) Christology (1L, 1P)

Objectives

To introduce students to and help them reflect critically on ways in which, within the Christian tradition, the person and work of Christ have been, and can be, reflected on.

Content

In addition to background information about biblical origins of Christology, some important themes in this part of theology are highlighted. Important themes include the humanity and divinity of Christ, his life, death, resurrection and glorification, and his saving and atoning work. Various approaches to, and critical questions about, these themes – also in contemporary contexts – are dealt with.

Outcomes

After completion of the module, students will be able to:

- give an overview of the historical development of Christology;
- compare and evaluate different views concerning the person and work of Christ;
- relate views and contexts – including contemporary African contexts;
- critically analyse philosophical and scientific questions about the doctrine;
- formulate and defend their own understanding of the doctrines; and
- point to ethical and existential implications of their understanding of the doctrine.

253 (8) Human Dignity (1L, 1P)

Objectives

The question of human dignity as an ethical matter is of central importance for the church, academy and society. This module focuses on the meaning and challenges of human dignity in reference to political ethics, sexual ethics and bio-ethics.

Content

Political ethics: race and identity, human rights and building a human rights culture, and violence and war.

Sexual ethics: human sexuality in contemporary society, marriage and family, divorce and remarriage, homosexuality, and other relevant sexuality issues.

Bio-ethics: human life in contemporary society, abortion, euthanasia, HIV/AIDS, stigmatisation of life, and other relevant medical issues.

Throughout the module the question of human dignity as an ethical matter is emphasised by way of an engagement with the insights of the Bible, tradition, reason and experience.

Outcomes

Understand the meaning of human dignity as a theological-ethical matter in its political, sexual and medical contexts.

Identify, recognise and critique relevant arguments of an ethical nature within the political, sexual and medical domains.

Apply Christian theological resources and insights to various human dignity challenges.

Provide thought leadership in church and public life towards responsible moral formation for a more humane life in its political, sexual and medical dimensions.

Home department: Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology

312 (8) Public Theology (1L, 1T)

Objectives

The question of public morality is an important matter for church and public life. This module explores various ethical challenges in public life and the actual and potential role and impact of Christian faith for the common good.

Content

The first part of the module provides an orientation and introduction to Christian faith and public life. Special attention is given to the ambiguous roles of church and theology during both apartheid and democratic South Africa. The second part of the module focuses specifically on economic ethics as a critical aspect of theological ethics and public life. Special consideration is devoted to such themes as the South African economy, globalisation, climate change, corporate social responsibility, work and labour, and public responsibility.

Outcomes

After completion of the module the student will be able to:

- Understand the meaning, nature, methodology and issues of public theology and its ethical role in public life.
- Identify, recognise and critique relevant arguments of an ethical nature within the public domain.
- Apply Christian theological resources and insights to various public morality challenges.
- Provide thought leadership in church and public life towards responsible moral formation for a more humane public life.

322 (8) Pneumatology and Eschatology (1L, 1T)Objectives

To introduce different approaches to the doctrine of the person and work of the Holy Spirit and the doctrine of the church, in the way that these doctrines have been contemplated in the history of theology and in current systematic theology, and to develop the necessary skills to reflect on these doctrines critically and defend an independent point of view.

Content

Within the broader Trinitarian framework, this module focuses on questions regarding and work of the Holy Spirit, the Trinity from a pneumatological perspective and those aspects of God's involvement in reality that traditionally, although not exclusively, have been linked to God as "Spirit" (or the "third Person of the Trinity"), to wit the origin and continuation of the church, as they have come up for discussion in the course of the history of theology and still come up in current systematic theology.

Outcomes

- Provide an overview of the historical development of pneumatology and ecclesiology
- Describe, compare and evaluate different systematic-theological standpoints on the person and work of the Holy Spirit and the nature and characteristics of the church
- Draw links between the different theological points of view and the contexts in which they are formulated and assessed – including current African contexts
- Explain and debate a number of philosophical and scientific questions that arise regarding the doctrines concerned

342 (8) Doctrine of the Church and Sacraments (1L, 1T)Objectives

To introduce different approaches to the doctrine of the sacraments and of the eschatology or end times, in the way that these doctrines have been contemplated in the history of theology and in current systematic theology, and to develop the necessary skills to reflect on these doctrines critically and defend an independent point of view.

Content

Within the broader Trinitarian framework, this module focuses on questions regarding the sacraments and the eschaton or end times that traditionally have been linked to God as "Spirit" (or the "third Person of the Trinity"), as they have come up for discussion in the course of the history of theology and still come up in current systematic theology.

Outcomes

- Provide an overview of the historical development of sacramentology and eschatology
- Describe, compare and evaluate different systematic-theological standpoints on the sacraments and the eschaton ("last days" or end times);
- Draw links between the different theological points of view and the contexts in which they are formulated and assessed – including current African contexts
- Explain and debate a number of philosophical and scientific questions that arise regarding the doctrines concerned
- Formulate an independent understanding of the doctrines clearly and systematically and defend such understanding in an argument

421 (8) Modern and Contemporary Theology: Background and Trends (1L, 1P)Objectives

To introduce the contributions of influential modern and contemporary theologians and theological trends, and to foster critical understanding of their work.

Content

The different loci of systematic theology having been covered in the first three years of study, the aim of this module is to introduce students to some modern and contemporary theologians and theological trends that have contributed significantly to reflection on the above-mentioned loci as well as other theological themes, and to situate these theologians and trends within the broader theological landscape so that it may become clear how specific theological viewpoints link up with other viewpoints held by a specific theologian or trend, and how this may be regarded as contributions within a continuous theological discourse. Thus the background to the work of every theologian or trend, their important publications and the central contents of their theology are discussed, also taking into account criticism on their work and the questions that it evoked, and their influence on other theologians and theological trends. Thus, students are brought up to date with the theology of their own time and enabled to position themselves within the theological discourse.

Outcomes

Can identify some of the most influential modern and contemporary theologians and theological trends and can indicate their position within the broader theological landscape.

Can give a cursory account of the background, publications and theological contents of some of these theologians and theological trends, including their various views on the nature and task of theology.

Can discuss the contribution of at least one of these theologians or trends critically and in more depth.

Can formulate and defend, in conversation with the theologians and trends that were discussed, an own view on the nature and task of theology.

Can draw on the knowledge, understanding and skills gained earlier on in the study trajectory to discuss with insight specific content viewpoints of the theologians and trends concerned.

Prerequisite pass modules: Systematic Theology 144, 212, 245, 253

Home department: Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology

444 (8) Modern and Contemporary Theology: Thinkers and Themes (1L, 1P)Objectives

To introduce the contributions of influential contemporary theological figures and important theological themes, and to foster critical understanding thereof.

Content

The different loci of systematic theology having been covered in the first three years of study, and a number of important historical figures and trends in the modern and contemporary theology having been covered in the first semester of the fourth year, the aim of this module is to expose students to the person, work and legacy of a number of living contemporary theologians (including South African theologians). Where possible, these theologians will come to address the class on their own theology. The second part of the module addresses some important theological themes in contemporary theology, such as theology and religion(s), theology and the arts, and theology and science. Thus students are brought up to date with the theology of their own time and enabled to position themselves within the theological discourse.

Outcomes

Have come to know the person and work of a number of important contemporary theologians (including South African theologians), and can indicate their position within the broader theological landscape.

Possess thorough knowledge and skills regarding important contemporary theological themes (e.g. theology and religion(s), theology and science, and theology and the arts).

Can discuss the contribution of at least one of these theological figures or theological themes critically and in more depth.

Can formulate and defend an own view on the theological figures and themes covered.

114 (16) Introduction to Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology (2L, 1T)

Objectives

The introduction of students to the discipline of theology, and more specifically with regard to the various disciplines in systematic theology and ecclesiology.

Content

The first part of the module focuses on questions such as the following: What is theology? What are the sources for theology? Where is theology practiced? What is the impact of our context on our theologising? Why is the history of theology important? How is theology related to faith, the church and public life?

After this broad introductory orientation, the rest of the module covers the questions, contents and methodologies related to the various disciplines of systematic theology, theological ethics, church history and church polity.

Outcomes

The ability to deal competently with questions such as the following: What is theology? What are the sources for theology? Where is theology practiced? What is the impact of our context on our theologising? Why is the history of theology important? How is theology related to faith, the church and public life?

A basic knowledge of questions, contents and methodologies related to the various disciplines that are presented in the discipline group of systematic theology and ecclesiology (namely systematic theology, theological ethics, church history and church polity).

The Centre is a research and service institution of Stellenbosch University which is based in the Systematic Theology and Ecclesiology discipline group and reports to the Faculty Board. The Centre is virtually entirely dependent on so-called third channel funding.

Aims

The Beyers Naudé Centre for Public Theology aims to:

- Advance understanding of the role, task and responsibility of Theology in the public arena through research, teaching and community interaction.
- Undertake research in co-operation with local and international experts into aspects of Public Theology.
 - Current research topics include human rights, human dignity in the context of globalisation, moral transformation, religion and identity, peace and justice, Christianity and civil society.
- Publicise the results of research by means of national and international publications and through the presentation of conferences, symposia, public lectures and workshops.
- Assist in the generation of contributions to publications which have a specific relevance to the Faculty of Theology.
- Perform research and provide advice on a contractual basis.
- Promote co-operation between the Faculty of Theology and the broader church communities, the ecumenical movements, national and international research and service institutions, and the public and private sector.
- Provide training in the form of short courses, seminars and similar initiatives.

2. Centre for Bible Interpretation and Translation in Africa (CEBITA)

Description

The Centre is an interdisciplinary research and service establishment of Stellenbosch University (SU) which is based in the Department of Ancient Studies and the Old and New Testament discipline group and which reports to the Arts and Social Sciences and Theology faculty boards. The mission of the Centre is to coordinate and promote academic expertise in the field of Bible interpretation and translation through research and facilitation so as to render a service to Bible interpretation, Bible translation, and the reception of the Bible in general, and on the African continent in particular.

Aims

The Centre for Bible Interpretation and Translation in Africa aims to:

- Undertake research on a project basis on relevant aspects of Bible interpretation, Bible translation, and the reception of the Bible, in collaboration with experts from within and outside of the University.
- Gather information on the need for research and practical assistance through regular liaison with all parties involved in the interpretation, translation or reception of the Bible (e.g. Bible translation agencies, training establishments, etc.) in Africa, so that research and other projects will not be exclusively theoretical in nature, but will also be practically orientated.
- Publicise the results of research by means of national and international academic publications, the presentation of symposia, workshops and/or conferences, and to make tested findings available to interest groups and members of the public through more popular publications.
- Compile a framework in conjunction with institutions governing Bible translation in Africa and related departments of SU and other educational institutions for equipping and training Bible translators and for the direction of researchers on Bible translation.
- Compile and maintain accessible computerised databases in the field of Bible interpretation, translation and reception in Africa, in co-operation with existing national and international information retrieval programmes.
- Provide advice on request to relevant publishers, translators or users of the Bible.
- Perform practical translation on a project basis and/or compile aids for understanding the Bible or parts of the Bible for specific reading groups and purposes.

3. Ekklesia

Description

Ekklesia functions as a bureau of the Faculty of Theology. The running costs are met by the Curatorium (the governing body) of the Dutch Reformed Church in South Africa, which, in turn, depends on donations from benevolent organisations and from members of its congregations.

Aims

The objectives of Ekklesia are to:

- Conduct ongoing research on:
 - the task and ministry of the church and the demands it faces in respect of the theological training of students and the continued theological training of ministers;
 - curriculum development in order to ensure that the continued training of ministers is effective.
- Facilitate postgraduate research projects with a ministry focus within the Faculty of Theology and to collaborate with other national and international research programmes.
- Create, with a view to continued theological training,
 - the necessary facilities and motivate ministers to continue studying after completion of their formal theological training; and
 - present regular courses for ministers and others involved in church ministry.

4. Unit for Religion and Development Research (URDR)

Description

Since early 2002, the Unit has been an independent entity within the structure of the Practical Theology and Missiology discipline group in the Faculty of Theology.

Aims

The Unit for Religion and Development Research empowers religious communities for sustainable development through research, theory formulation and training. The unit aims to:

- Perform primary and secondary religio-demographic research in relation to the developmental profile and requirements of local communities.
- Develop applicable theory formulation that is relevant to:
 - the interpretation of the religio-demographic research; and
 - the mobilisation of religious communities towards sustainable community development.
- Make available to postgraduate students (master's and doctoral) a training facility and research venue in the field of Theology and Development and other disciplines in the social sciences.
- Provide professional research and training services to communities.
- Communicate research results through scientific and popular publications.
