

Open Dialogues on Race Series

“Save the Date” Announcement

Hosted by

STUDIES IN HISTORICAL TRAUMA AND TRANSFORMATION

STELLENBOSCH UNIVERSITY

MODERATOR OF SERIES:

Pumla Gobodo-Madikizela

DATES

Thursday, 16 March 2017

“What it Means to be black and white in South Africa”

Mosa Phadi and Dr Kim Wale

Thursday 23 March 2017

“‘This dialogue thing’ – Transformative conversations about race”

Martina Dahlmans and Tumi Jonas

Thursday 30 March 2017

“What does it mean to be coloured in South Africa?”

Inquiries: Jolene Pietersen - 021 808 4047 or jrp1@sun.ac.za

For the next three Thursdays, we will be hosting what we hope will be open conversations on race. These public conversations will be led by coloured, black and white women who have maintained sustained conversation about race and racism, grappling with experiencing the reality of race as it plays out in their relationship with one another. Our interest in these dialogue processes is in learning about the potentially transformative moments that emerge from the women’s encounter with “the other,” and to understand some of the deeper issues that are difficult to face in conversations about race.
