

Teaching and Learning Forum

Exploring the remotely 'wicked' problem of online clinical assessment

The COVID-19 pandemic has changed Health Professions Education, advancing it years ahead into the future. During strict lockdown, the FMHS, as all other educational fields, was forced to swiftly rethink and adapt our educational strategies for remote delivery. The power of learning technologies was harnessed to facilitate meaningful teaching, learning and assessment experiences in a fully online context. While our innovative faculty members/teachers developed and implemented various exciting new online approaches, online clinical teaching and assessment remain tricky.

In light of embracing the challenges we face, we thought to explore the 'wicked problem' of online clinical assessment, exchange experiences of how different disciplines have dealt with this issue during the time of online remote learning and identify best practices that would allow us to make informed decisions going forward!

Our discussants will include Prof Michael Rowe from UWC and faculty colleagues.

Join us for an interactive and engaging online discussion and share your own experiences!

Date: 17 March 2021

Time: 12:30-14:00

Venue: 1034 Education Building / MS TEAMS

For more information, please contact Lorraine Louw: lh1@sun.ac.za

