

Prof Cecilia Jacobs

Prof Cecilia Jacobs is an Associate Professor in Higher Education at the CHPE in the Faculty of Medicine and Health Sciences. Her field of expertise is higher education studies, and she has worked predominantly in the area of the professionalisation of academics for their teaching roles. Her work has been of a transdisciplinary nature, and she has always conducted research at the intersection of her field and other disciplines, such as engineering and, currently, health sciences. Her current research focuses on the question of knowledge and the importance of its centrality in debates on higher education teaching and learning.