

LAUNCH OF THE WOMEN IN PLUMBING TRAINING

Did you know that the Department of Water Affairs in collaboration with the Western Cape Department of Local Government and the Development Bank of Southern Africa Vulindlela Academy are launching the Women in Plumbing Training today at the Stellenbosch University Telematic Service Centre and 10 learning Centre's including Bredarsdorp, Vredendal and George.

The primary objective of this training initiative is to enable women to deal with basic plumbing to curb water losses in their households and environment.

The 300 unemployed women will participate in the generic plumbing training which will be conducted through theory and practical knowledge transfer.

This is the second time the telematic training is presented in the water sector, last year the Department of Water Affairs trained Process Controllers for the Green drop.

Telematic platform is a satellite technology that allows participants to engage from various learning centre's provided there is infrastructure. This is indeed a spectacular initiative for Women's Month.

Tony Brutus & Josette Matthee

Panelists engaging

Tony Brutus addressing the audience

Learners participating at the Stellenbosch telematic centre