Draft Programme

Suggestion for the title:

TAU means lion in Northern Sotho and conveniently Lion and Leadership has the first starting sound... I think one can play with that. Perhaps something like 'The TAU-Lion and L/leadership'.

- Welcome - Karin
- Introduction to TAU and the TAU Fellows - Cecilia
- Three perspectives from TAU Fellows:
 - Prof Ian Couper – my TAU journey of moving through the (foreign) language of scholarship in learning and teaching, and into an understanding myself as learner-teacher, while exploring the self-directed learning of students.
 - Dr Berna Gerber - the origin and focus of my TAU project and the story of where this project has taken me and my Division and Department.
 - Prof Faadiel Essop - my TAU journey: a unique learning experience..
- Discussion – Cecilia
- Closing and thanks – Karin

TAU Fellows:

Ian Couper is Director, Ukwanda Centre for Rural Health, and Professor of Rural Health, Department of Global Health. He was in the inaugural TAU cohort (2015-16); his project was a scoping review on the value of Self-directed Learning in Health Professions Education.

Berna Gerber is a senior lecturer as well as post graduate programme coordinator in the Division of Speech-, Language-, and Hearing Therapy. She was part of the second TAU cohort (2018-2019) and her fellowship projects focussed on health humanities education and educating for cultural competence.

Faadiel Essop is a professor in the Division of Medical Physiology and the Director of the Centre for Cardio-metabolic Research Centre in Africa. He was part of the TAU 2021-2022 cohort and his project was a curriculum renewal process (Hons module in Medical Physiology) focusing on a human-centered STEM context.
