

Division of Epidemiology and Biostatistics

Annual Research Day

The Division of Epidemiology and Biostatistics hosted the Research Day on 30 July 2018. This was a perfect setting for our postgraduate students to showcase their current research projects through oral and poster presentations. The guest speakers Dr Jabulani Ncayiyana, an epidemiologist from UCT, gave a thought provoking talk on Spatial Epidemiology, and Isaac Singini, a PhD in Biostatistics student from UCT, challenged the audience with a talk entitled ‘Diagnostics for joint models for longitudinal and survival data’. The Research Day was attended by 28 participants including students and staff of the division and other departments from the Faculty of Medicine and Health Sciences and was graced by Prof Chikte, the Executive Head of the Department of Global Health.
